Symphony 'Pops'

Here's the scenario for a perfect mid-summer's eve: under the light of the full moon, strains of pleasant melody float gently on the evening air over an attentive audience relaxing on a vast green lawn.

This is the prospect in store for the third annual Vermont Symphony Summer Pops Concert at Giorgetti Park this coming Saturday, July 14. The popular event attracted almost 2,000 listeners last year.

Appearing under the sponsorship of the Rutland Area VSO Friends and the Rutland City Recreation and Parks Department, the state orchestra is directed by Maestro Efrain Guigui.

The program will begin at 7 p.m. with the grounds opening at 5 p.m. for pre-concert picnickers.

On the schedule for the performance are a number of all-time favorite light concert pieces, without which such an evening would almost be incomplete. These include Handel's Royal Fireworks Music, Tchaikovsky's 1812 Overture, and the Allegro from the Scheherazade Suite of Rimsky-Korsakov. Weinberger's lively Polka and Fugue from his opera Schvanda the Bagpiper will open the proceedings and the musical comedy repertory will be represented by a medley from Loewe's My Fair Lady, Sousa's Stars and Stripes Forever provides the rousing finale.

Listeners will also be treated to the appearance of two guest musicians new to the Pops Series in the area.

Singing special classical selections will be soprano Jane Bryden. A graduate of New England Conservatory of Music, Miss Bryden has been a soloist with the Boston Symphony, the Waverly Consort, and other prestigious ensembles. Her tours have taken her to Europe and South America and across this country, and she has been on the NBC Today Show. She is an associate professor of music at Smith College.

Concert Saturday

Yenoin Guibbory, VSO summer concertmaster, will play an exciting gypsy violin solo, Monti's Czardas. During the academic year, Guibbory is concertmaster of the Plattsburgh College Community Orchestra. Since 1971 he has been a member of the music faculty at the upstate New York college, coming to the northeast after stints in Santa Fe, West Virginia University, and the University of Southern Mississippi.

As an added attraction, the elevating influence of music will have a dramatic demonstration in the launching of a hot-air balloon at 6:45 p.m., provided by its owner, Olin DeForge. Smaller balloons bearing the VSO logo, traditionally part of the Pops, will also be available to contribute to the festive atmosphere; the sight of these pale globes bobbing above the seated audience and sometimes escaping to sail upward into the twilight, always lends an indefinable air of spectral celebration to the scene.

Admission prices are $5 for adults, $1 for children 6 to 18, with pre-schoolers free. Tickets are available at Book King and Red Balloon in downtown Rutland, Wilson Sports at the Rutland Mall, Brown's of Brandon, Wallingford Locker, Castleton Village Store, and at the gate.

In case of rain, the concert will begin at 8 p.m. under shelter at the park.

The event is partially supported by a Touring Aid Grant from the Vermont Council on the Arts.

RUTLAND, VERMONT, MONDAY MORNING, JULY 16, 1984

A large crowd turned out at Giorgetti Park in Rutland Saturday night for the Vermont Symphony Orchestra. Many parents found the outdoor concert to be perfect for a family outing. At right, VSO music director Efrain Guigui conducts the orchestra.

VSO Concert: A Feast for the Ears

By DANIEL L. GRAVES

More than 2,000 people feasted on picnic dinners and the sweet sounds of the Vermont Symphony Orchestra at the VSO's annual pops concert at Giorgetti Park Saturday evening.

The crowd was spread out across the park's baseball fields, many sitting on colored blankets taking in the last rays of the setting sun.

Lawn chairs served both as furniture and as anchors for the white VSO toy balloons bobbing overhead. On one blanket, a small table was spread with tablecloth and wine glasses.

Though the orchestra could be heard warming up, not until there was a smattering of applause down in front did most of the crowd realize that the concert was beginning.

Maestro Efrain Guigui, VSO music director, took the podium and signalled the orchestra to begin. But the first piece was eclipsed by the ascent of Olin DeForge's hot-air balloon. Parents hugged their toddlers pointing to the sky and applauding.

The picnickers then waltzed forward and settled in for the concert.

Soprano Jane Bryden was the guest soloist. In Bishop's "Lo' Hear the Gentle Lark," Bryden sang a dialogue with the solo flute, displaying mastery of stratospheric runs and staccato passages. In a cadenza, both Bryden and flutist Susan Thomas emerged as musicians capable of withstanding the closest scrutiny.

Guigui's conducting was most impressive in Rimsky-Korsakov's "Allegro" from Scheherazade. The orchestra shifted moods from regal to driving, sentimental to fiercely rhythmic, always precise in pitch and rhythm.

Never giving in to its technical difficulties, Concertmaster Yenein Guibordy performed the violin solo in Monti's gypsylike Czardas with alternating sensitivity and bravado.

After the hymn-like beginning of Tchaikovsky's 1812 Overture, the audience was jarred and jugged by real cannon fire at its conclusion. It brought them to their feet for a standing ovation.

The applause continued to keep the beat as the VSO broke into Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever." Adults bounced infants in their laps and many yelled "encore" after the entire encore section stood for the final reprise.

The orchestra sat down and played most of "Stars and Stripes" again while many pleased concertgoers carried lawn chairs to their cars and remarked at what a beautiful day it had been.

The concert was sponsored by the Rutland Area Friends of the VSO and the Rutland City Recreation and Parks Department.

Giancola Suing City For Damage to Theater<sup>130</sup>

By MEGAN PRICE

Paramount Theater owner Joseph Giancola is asking the city to pay for damage he said was caused to his building during construction of the Center Street Alley.

Although the amount of the well-known city contractor's claim against the city was not disclosed, sources said he was seeking about $20,000.

Giancola claims the west wall of the building was damaged by the work there several years ago, according to City Attorney Frank Zetelski. At the same time, a ramp was removed, which allowed access to the back wall of the old theater.

(See Page 22: Suit)

Suit

When the alley was conducted, the ground level was lowered so that a back door there stands high above the ground level, Zetelski said.

Giancola wants access to the rear of the building now, Zetelski said, and claims the city should bear that cost.

Letters between the theater owners and the city concerning problems with the building have been exchanged since 1979, Zetelski said, even before Giancola became the principal owner of the property.

But the city attorney said he does not think Giancola wanted the money now to spend it on a replacement ramp, but rather to invest the money in reconstruction of the building's interior. The contractor has other plans for installing a rear access, Zetelski said.

Alderman Laurant LaMontagne, the city's former building inspector, said he recalled inspecting the west wall of the old theater in 1980. A letter from LaMontagne ordered the wall's repair, citing it as a danger, according to Zetelski.

LaMontagne said Giancola complied with that order, but argued then that the city should pay for the work. "But we proved to him the city was not responsible in this particular case," LaMontagne said.

The aldermen must decide whether they want to pay Giancola for his claims or fight them, Zetelski told members of the Recreation Committee last Wednesday.

Committee members went into executive session to discuss Giancola's claims. When they returned to an open meeting some time later, they decided to table the matter pending further study, Alderman John Cassarino, the committee chairman, said.

Walking Exercise Program Planned

8/13
The Rutland Recreation Department, in cooperation with the Rutland Area Nursing Association and the Vermont Department of Health, is developing a new walking exercise program, called "Walking To Be A Healthy Vermonter." The program will kick-off in September.

Walking routes near and around the Rutland downtown area will be established. Routes will only be approximately 15-to-20 minutes long, with an average distance of 3 miles. Each route will be designed to cater to as many people who participate.

Routes will include the "lunch walk" for people on their lunch break, the "coffee walk" for those on their coffee break, and the "shoppers walk" for those who like window shop.

According to Tad Nunez of the Recreation Department, studies have shown that regular exercise such as walking can have a strong effect on one's ability to remember and think clearly.

We would like to thank our coaches, Mr. Bob Martel and Mr. Phil Dwyer, for their time, leadership and spirit in coaching our Midget League team, Rotary South.

We had a great year — our team was undefeated in 14 regular season games — and we went on to win the city championship against WHWB. We couldn't have done it without you!

We also wish to thank everyone at Rotary South for sponsoring our team and for the great new uniforms!

A very special thanks goes to our parents, relatives and friends who supported us and cheered us on at every game. Without your encouragement it wouldn't have been as much fun.

City Eyes Sugar Maple Land

By MEGAN PRICE

Should the city buy the North Church Street property which used to be home to the Sugar Maple Children's Center Inc.?

Rutland City Recreation and Parks Superintendent John Cioffredi said Monday he thought the purchase might be a wise one, depending on the price.

Cioffredi has sent a letter to Mayor John J. Daley suggesting consideration of the property and its buildings.

According to reports, the property is for sale for more than $110,000. "I certainly would not recommend (the purchase) at that price," Cioffredi said.

Daley said he would support the formation of a special study group to review the pros and cons of buying the property and to determine what it would be used for if a price could be established.

Cioffredi said he was approached by a real estate salesperson who was listing the property. The person asked if city officials would be interested in the property.

Cioffredi said he toured the land and the buildings. He said he thought it could be "ideal" for expansion of some of the city's recreation programs.

"It's a prime piece of property that we could utilize" to add more preschool programs for children and handicapped persons in the city, he said.

"We could increase what we are doing now. I think it has possibilities," he said. The property has a large wading pool, a caboose and a large all-purpose building with a kitchen. It is located at the end of North Church Street.

According to City Hall sources, the property is owned by Sugar Maple Children's Center Inc. But Rutland builder Joseph Giancola may have the right of first refusal on the property, sources said.

Sugar Maple closed its doors March 16 after city voters turned down a $60,000 ballot request. Day-care center officials said they needed $60,000 for one year to keep the center operating.

More than 100 area families lost day-care services after the closing. The building has been vacant ever since.

Cioffredi said he has several ideas for use of the property if the city were to purchase it, but he did not want to disclose them yet.

Cioffredi said he did "not want to get into the day-care business" and re-open the facility as a day-care center.

Nor would he consider moving the recreation department's administrative offices from the Lawrence Recreation Center on Center Street to North Church Street, he said. "I don't think we would move the offices out of here," he said.

Cioffredi said there is not enough room at the North Church Street property for that move.

And the superintendent said the purchase of the property also would not serve as a substitute for a new centralized recreation center, an idea pushed by former Alderman Betty Ferraro.

Ferraro, who championed the cause of a new recreation center, resigned her aldermanic seat last spring due to illness. Since that time, there has been little discussion of plans for a new center.

Cioffredi said the need for a new recreation center is still near the top of his priority list.

The superintendent said he sent a letter to the mayor and has informed some aldermen of the sale to see if there was any interest among city officials. Cioffredi said he did not know if there were others outside of city government interested in the property.

"I just think it would be a good opportunity to acquire the property if the price were right," Cioffredi said.

'The Leash' Unveiled

With a flourish, Mayor John J. Daley cuts the ribbon on "The Leash," a Patrick Farrow sculpture donated to the City of Rutland in a public ceremony Tuesday afternoon. The Farrow family has spent more than a year raising money to make a full-sized version of a sculpture Farrow created two years ago. (Story, Page 13)

Dog Day Afternoon In Rutland

By STEPHEN BAUMANN

Rutland put on the dog in the name of art Tuesday when Patrick Farrow's sculpture, "The Leash," was unveiled in Depot Park.

A crowd of more than 100 people gathered at 5 p.m. at the small park in the heart of the downtown to get first glances at the bronze sculpture.

There were speeches by Mayor John J. Daley and businessman Henry Carris thanking Farrow for creating the sculpture and thanking sponsors for donating the artwork to the city.

Then Farrow stepped forward and said simply, "This is your gift. I hope you like it." He added quickly with a smile, "You've got it whether you like it or not."

Farrow's daughters, Justine and Brittney, his niece, Calen Erb, and a friend, Patty Coughlin, then took hold of the long tarp covering the sculpture and pulled it back.

Leash

Dozens of white balloons, let loose from beneath the tarp, soared into the sky over the city. Daley cut a ribbon "leash." The crowd cheered. Cameras clicked. People pressed closer to the 2-by-12-foot patch of park and smiled.

The children knew right away what this hoopla was all about. Within a minute of being un-tarped, the dog's sleek back became a playseat for small fry. While the citizens of Rutland had received a great gift of art, the children of Rutland had received a little something more: a new bronze pet.

"This is the frosting on the cake," said Carris about the children's reaction to art. "It just asks to be sat on," replied Harris Peel, owner of The Peel Gallery in Danby and one of the major sponsors of "The Leash."

What "The Leash" is is a bronze casting of a dog and a bronze casting of a parking meter mounted on a slab of marble. The dog is straining away from meter, straining hard on his leash. There is no actual leash between the two; they are linked only by Farrow's talent and the imagination of the viewer.

Last year, Farrow and his wife, Susan, conceived the idea of donating the sculpture — a life-sized version of a piece Farrow had done two years ago — to the city. The idea was a hit, and immediately businesses and individuals stepped forward to donate money toward the cost of the project.

Their dogged determination paid off Tuesday afternoon.

The reaction unleashed by the public sculpture was nothing less than enthusiastic.

"It was so moving," said one woman in the crowd. "It looks phenomenal, absolutely phenomenal," a friend replied. "It's such a touch of class."

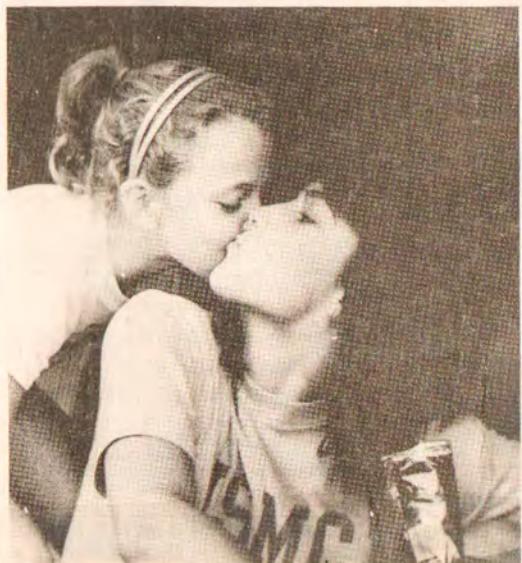

Michael Beatty, an architect from Middletown Springs, said, "What this reminds me of is that the things that limit us are only in our imagination."

Soon after the unveiling, the cheers and congratulations, Farrow said, "The kids seem to love it ... I'm in shock myself."

He added, "I think the question is 'Is it better than a two-foot by 12-foot section of grass in Depot Park?'"

Even the most dogged of lawn-lovers probably would have conceded the space to Farrow and "The Leash."

On a bronze plaque on the base of the sculpture appear the names of major contributors to the project. They are: Aesthetics, Michael C. Aleshire, John B. Caldwell, Carris Reels, Inc., Center Vermont Public Service Corp., Susan Erb Farrow, General Electric Co., Killington Ski Area, Mintzer Brothers, Inc., Moon Brook Arts Union, The Peel Gallery, Margaret and Harris Peel, Proctor Bank, John A. Russell Corp., Rutland Herald, Rutland House Ltd., Rutland Plywood Corp., Sirloin Saloon, Tallix Foundry and Vermont Marble Co.

Giorgetti Park Camp Closes for the Season

The Pine Hill Day Camp closed its gates Friday afternoon after two two-week sessions. Located in Giorgetti Park, the camp emphasized nature oriented activities that promote an awareness and understanding of the environment and man's role in it. Activities included nature studies, campcrafts, nature crafts, drama, music and hiking. On the last day of camp an olympic-type competition was held for the various age groups. The games included a softball toss (Kelley Crosby in the right photo), a fifty yard dash, a kick-ball competition and a 100 yard dash. Medals were awarded to the victors which included 'The Little Skeeters' - the first grade group of campers - who were given gold medals (top right). Karen Mazzariello-Malagodi spent time reading the younger children some stories (top left). With the end of camp came the farewells and Bonnie Crosby gave her counselor Renee Parkman a 'good-bye' kiss.

City Awaits Opinion on Giancola Claim

By MEGAN PRICE

City Attorney Frank Zetelski will give the aldermen a written opinion as to whether the city owes Joseph Giancola $20,000 for repairs to his Paramount Theater building on Center Street.

Giancola is asking city officials to keep a pledge he said they made to the previous owners of the old theater.

That agreement stipulated that a ramp at the rear of the building and a brick wall removed during construction of the Center Street Alley project would be replaced at a later date, Giancola said.

But Giancola said he would rather have money from the city than either a replacement ramp or brick wall. Depending on whose estimates one accepts, a new ramp would cost up to $15,000 and a brick wall about $5,000, he told members of the aldermanic Recreation Committee Tuesday.

If a replacement ramp were constructed now and the brick wall was put back in place, access to the alley from Center Street would be cut off, Giancola said, "defeating the whole purpose" of the unique bricked park. So Giancola said he would prefer cash.

But Alderman John Cassarino asked how much more money taxpayers would have to pay for the alley project. It cost $560,000 to build; the city lost 35-to-40 parking spaces in its creation and brick repairs amounting to thousands of more dollars are now needed, he said.

"I've talked to the city treasurer (Ronald Graves) and he doesn't think we are liable," Cassarino told Giancola.

Alderman Patricia Donnelly wanted an agreement from Giancola that if the city were to give him a cash settlement, the money would be put into further renovations in the building.

But Giancola said how he would spend the money was up to him and he would make no such promise.

Giancola said he had purchased an option on the property at the time the replacement ramp and wall agreement was made with the city and that the stipulation was still

(See Page 32: Giancola)

, AUGUST 30, 1984

Giancola

valid even though the property changed hands.

Giancola has not filed a lawsuit against the city. He said he preferred to negotiate face to face with the aldermen and avoid a court fight.

Giancola wants to sell the building for $170,000 to a private group or to the city for its development as a performing arts center.

He said he paid $60,000 for the building about three years ago but had put another $70,000 into roof repairs, $25,000 into architectural drawings for planned remodeling and a lot more money.

The $170,000 figure represents only his own costs in initial purchase price and cost of repairs and plans, he said. If the theater sells for that price, Giancola said, he would make no profit on the building.

But barring that preferred use as a theater, Giancola plans to turn the old theater into a series of retail shops.

"It's a beautiful building, but it's the biggest headache I have," Giancola said of the old theater. He said the acoustics in the building were excellent and the interior reminiscent of a unique period in the past.

One historian begged him to "mothball" the building for future generations rather than cut it into retail shops because of the theater's historic and architectural value, he said.

"This is one of the last of its kind from what they tell me," Giancola said. "It's demolition or restoration."

After a brief executive session, the aldermen asked Zetelski to review the facts of the case and issue a written opinion of the city's liability.

Zoning

changes to the aldermen for adoption or rejection, Zetelski said.

The city attorney said there was no legal way that he knew of for the independent central committee to present its zoning or subdivision bylaws to voters without first getting approval from the Planning Commission and aldermen.

But Zetelski said his interpretation of the law might be wrong and that was why he and the planners wanted to meet with the central committee members.

Zetelski said he believed Richardson and others had been given legal advice that contradicted his legal opinion.

"It's very difficult to believe such a meeting would not have been fruitful," Zetelski said of the offer rejected by Richardson.

Rutland Rugby Club Wins, 10-0

The Rutland Area Rugby Club, sponsored by the Rutland Recreation and Parks Department, defeated the Adirondack Rugby Club of Glens Falls, N.Y., 10-0, Saturday in New York State.

The first try was scored by team captain Mike Bissonette, with the extra point successfully kicked by Ernie Senecale. Mike Johnson scored the second try.

The point system is as follows: A try equals four points and the extra kick is worth two points.

During the wet, slippery game, the eight forwards did an outstanding job gaining possession of the ball. The forwards' responsibilities are to gain possession of the ball in the scrum, allowing the seven backs to take over and run, pass and kick their way to the goal line.

Rutland's next game is Sunday, September 23, at Norwich.

Flutist Linda Chesis to Tour As 1984 GE's Affiliate Artist

Castleton State College and Crossroads Arts Council will join forces for a second year to present Linda Chesis, the 1984 General Electric Foundation affiliate artist.

Chesis will spend two weeks in September giving performances throughout Rutland County. She will return in April for a final week of performances and a full performance on her final day in the area.

One of the few Americans ever to receive the coveted Premier Prix de Flute from the Conservatoire National Supérieur in Paris, Chesis is the winner of numerous competitions, including the 1978 Maria Canals International Competition in Barcelona, Spain.

She has also won the C.D. Jackson Award, the International Claude Debussy Award, and the 1980 National Flute Association Competition, and is the recipient of a 1983 National Endowment for the Arts Solo Recitalist Fellowship. She was selected to join the roster of Affiliate Artists Inc. in 1981.

Chesis made her New York solo recital debut in 1980 at Carnegie Recital Hall, as winner of the artist International Musician's Competition. She has since appeared in recital on Metropolitan Museum of Art's Introduction and as an orchestral soloist at Carnegie Hall.

In 1983, she performed at Avery Fisher Hall with Jean-Pierre Rampal and Julius Baker. She recently completed a successful tour of Japan, and travels this fall to the Netherlands and England, where she will make her London debut.

While in the area, Chesis will give "informances" (an informal presentation during which an artist not only performs selections from her repertoire but also establishes a lively dialogue with the audience) for schools, business and factory workers, civic and social groups, and area arts organizations.

Her schedule for the first two weeks is nearly full, but area groups interested in having her visit during her April residency may contact either Crossroads Arts Council or Castleton State College (775-5413 or 468-5615) for more information.

This residency is made possible by a generous grant from the General Electric Foundation with assistance from National Endowment on the Arts and the Vermont Council on the Arts.

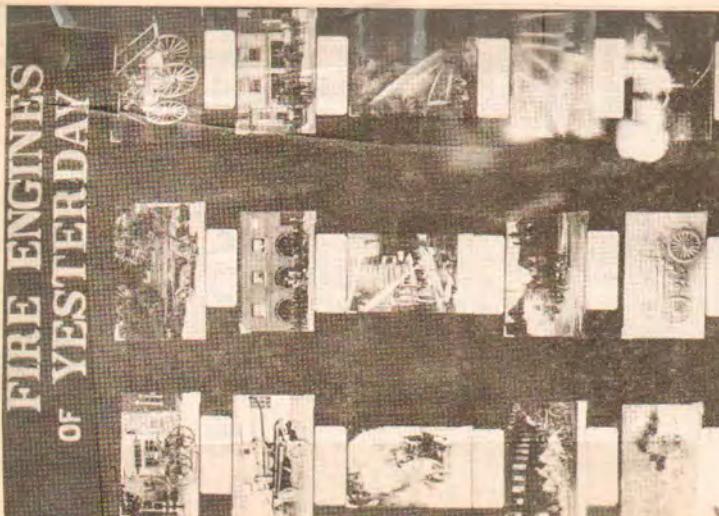

Castleton and Crossroads have also received financial aid for Chesis' visit from Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge, and many area restaurants and businesses.

Open Basketball at Giorgette Park

The Giorgette basketball courts will be open for free basketball play every Monday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday from 5 to 9 p.m. beginning Monday, September 10. The courts are not open on Tuesday nights. Both teenagers and adults are welcome to play. Open basketball will continue through September.

These early postcards depicting horse-drawn fire engines were collected by Philip Molitor of Randolph. They are among more than 50 stamp, postcard and letter displays on view at the Rutland County Stamp Club's booth at the Presidential Building at the Vermont State Fair at Rutland.

Philately Is Lively <sup>93</sup> At the Fair

By YVONNE DALEY

When you see the postcards outside the President's Building at the Rutland fair, go inside. You're in for a surprise if you think stamp and postcard collecting is dull stuff.

This year marks the 50th anniversary of the Rutland County Stamp Club and its members have, as usual, put together a great show. This is the 31st year the club, the oldest of its kind in the state, has displayed at the fair. The club has more than 100 members.

To mark the event, the club has 55 framed exhibits of stamps, letter covers and postcards.

A souvenir cover with a multicolor cachet will be available for sale. It will be a cover envelope carrying a special Vermont State Fair cancellation noting the club's 50th anniversary.

Stamps and postcards are a pictorial history of events and places, creatures and people. Some, such as Tom McDevitt, the superintendent of the Rutland County Stamp Club's exhibit and a longtime collector, consider them an art form deserving notice.

Technically, stamp collecting is called philately and postcard collecting is called deltiology.

Randolph Police Chief Philip Molitor has put together two displays of postcards of early fire engines, good examples of the commemorating Adm. Richard Byrd's U.S. Antarctic expedition in 1940-41 and flag cancellations collected by Jason Granger of East Randolph, including a rare rare, McDevitt said. Joseph Spusta of Pittsford, who retired last year from the U.S. Forest Service, has his first stamp display at the fair. It's a lovely collection of U.S. stamps commemorating natural resources — stamps of animals, fish, birds and other flora and fauna. Also there's a display of items stagecoaches.

Also in the collection are a display of stamps commemorating Eleanor Roosevelt as a humanitarian and stamps as a humanitarian and stamps commemorating Nobel Prize winners, postcards of Barbados from the early 1900s and a display of the famous Concord stagecoaches.

Boxing Raises Funds

By CHUCK CLARINO

Amateur boxing returned to Rutland in fine style with a card of 10 bouts topped by a hot and heavy rematch of the Vermont Golden Glove Heavyweight Championship Saturday at the Royce Mandigo Arena.

Four to five hundred boxing fans showed up primed for boxing action, and from all accounts, they got it and had a good time in the first such set of amateur matches held in Rutland since 1976.

The evening of amateur boxing was staged by the Bruce Fredette Memorial Committee and Vermont fight promoter Ernie Ferrar. The proceeds from the evening went to the American Cancer Society and the Rutland-Rec Boxing Club, headed by coach Tommy Garrow.

Golden Gloves Heavyweight champ Angelo Iachetta headed a delegation of five fighters from the Rutland-Rec team. Iachetta won a decision over teammate Marc Machain in a fine rematch of their February tussle and for his efforts was named the evening's Outstanding Boxer. Rutland-Rec light heavyweight Scott Shaddock was also a victor, besting Greater Hoosick's Corey Colter in a tight battle.

The evening consisted of two exhibition matches, including a minor bout, and seven bouts that were counters on the fighters won-loss records. Without a doubt, the best fight of the night was the heavyweight finale that was worth the price of admission. In February, Iachetta won a unanimous decision over Machain in the Golden Gloves championships, but Machain didn't fight well at that time. Iachetta won by fighting smart, boxng his opponent who brawled and didn't engage in his usual effective inside body tactics.

Machain dearly wanted a match to prove that he could get a respectable match and he did it Saturday in front of the home town folks.

Machain gave Iachetta all he could handle, winning the first round by most accounts. But Iachetta kept his composure and used his height and reach advantage, jabbing and tying up the shorter powerfully built Machain until he tried to get inside.

"I tried not to lose my head. If I see it I fight out of control and quit it out," said Iachetta post fight. "Marc is better at slugging than I am. I had to hit and move. The corner told me that I lost the first round and that I had to come back and stick him and move out — box him."

Machain was emotional. Roaring at times, ripping off his headgear when it came loose in the second round, while Iachetta played it cool. By the third round, Iachetta was effectively thwarting Machain's body attack and getting off his big punches faster and more effectively than Machain.

"Marc fought a really good fight," said Iachetta. "I have to hand it to him. He wanted a rematch and I gave it to him. He hit me with some good body shots. But I stayed on him so he couldn't get his long punches off."

Machain's poor showing in February, disappointed coach Garrow, but the rematch tickled the long-time Rutland coach/trainer's heart.

"It was an excellent fight," said Garrow. "I was mad at Marc for the way he fought the first fight, but I'm not anymore. It's one of those things, I train both of them. I'm proud of Angelo for the fight he fought and I especially congratulate Marc for losing a good fight."

As for the other Rutland winner, Scott Shaddock, he learned from his brothers' mistakes. Both brother John and Dale lost earlier in the evening. John lost the second fight of the night to Milton's Shawn Jenkins by TKO, while Dale fell to Mike Minotto of Glens Falls on a decision.

Both John and Dale got off quickly, but ran out of gas at the end. Scott, however, was more patient, working the body of Colter and simply outpointing the Bennington fighter, as both boxers were bone tired at the end.

"I felt tired at the end, but Mark Garrow (son of Tommy and a former Vermont and New England GG champ) told me not to choke," said Scott Shaddock. "I held back early and went to the body. That worked."

In other action: Ray "Boom-Boom" Pockette of Tri-Town decided Joe Wenchel of Glens Falls in a wild 147-pound match. Milton's Paul Morits surprisingly won by a TKO over Waterbury's Scott Patterson who hurt a rib in a 125-pound battle. Tri-Towns Rocky Burnor decided Rick Wenchel of Glens Falls also at 125 pounds, while Trevor Jenkins won by default.

But the evening had a purpose — raising money to fight cancer — as well as staging amateur boxing matches. The focus became very clear and really brought home the message when the members of the Bruce Fredette Memorial Committee presented a check for $500 to John Bergamo before the heavyweight finale.

Bergamo's son Anthony was stricken with leukemia and underwent a bone marrow transplant last fall. Bergamo came on behalf of his young son, who is recovering at the family's home in Bethel, to accept the donation and thank the Committee and all the supporters. Bergamo's words of thanks were few, but sincere and moving.

"It seems to me that the evening was a success," said Willy Maynard. "People seemed to enjoy themselves. And we'll try it again as long as the people have us back."

"We want to let people know who we are," Maynard continued. "To let them know that we can still have fun and raise money for charity. We like to give people something to enjoy, not just come to the door and ask for a donation. And we certainly want to thank everybody that helped us."

The Committee also wanted to set the record straight as far as the Fair Association, which owns the Royce Mandigo Arena and rented it to the Committee as a spot to hold the fights.

"We didn't state the facts accurately (in the story before the fight)," said Wayne Canney. "The Fair Association built this place (Mandigo); they own it and lease it to RAHA. We weren't charged for the grounds, but for the use of the building."

"They (Fair Association) were more than helpful to us and I want to single out Bob Sharp and Ed Congdon," Canney continued. "They were responsible for getting us the chairs, they gave us the run of the place and helped us in every way possible."

Silver Anniversary of Eerie Tradition

By JOHN DOLAN

A score and five Halloweens (that's 25 of 'em) after the first local Halloween parade, Rutland has gained a certain notoriety as being one of the few — if not the only — cities in the northeast to host such a macabre event every year.

After all, what other city in the U.S. can boast of (or admit to) holding an annual Halloween parade ... and having had the distinction immortalized in Marvel Comics ... AND having been mentioned in one of H.P. Lovecraft's writings as being one of those eerie New England towns where strange things happen?

What all this says about Rutland is open to interpretation, but parade organizers talk about it with pride. At least the part about the parade and Marvel Comics.

Not too many know that Rutland, Hardwick and one or two other select Vermont communities were mentioned by Lovecraft in the same paragraphical breath as such terrible places of legend as Arkham and Innsmouth. But not to worry. That was in the 1920s and besides, that horrific chronicler doubtless picked Rutland at random from a map. Doubtless.

Back to Rutland's notorious Halloween Parade, which had humble beginnings. The first one in 1960 consisted of two high school bands, some costumed kids and Mayor John Daley riding a Jeep.

City Recreation Director John Cioffredi admits there were some dumb (not his word) mistakes that first year — such as routing the parade from Main Street Park down Center Street, up Washington Street and back to the park.

The kids who managed to stay with the entourage going down

1984 Parade Line-Up

The 1984 Rutland Recreation Department Halloween Parade entries (as of Oct. 22) are:

Section One — city police car, recreation department banner, Veterans of Foreign Wars color guard, car with Pumpkin Princess Michelle Micalissi, Mayor John Daley, former Mayor Dan Healy and city Recreation Director John Cioffredi, Rutland High School Band and majorettes, Supergirl and Friends, Chittenden Cub Scouts Pack 101, Miss Paula's Theatrical Entourage, Rutland City Fire Department float, Christ the King School Band and marchers, College of St. Joseph float.

Section Two — Mill River Union High School Queen Paula Smith, MRUHS Band, MRUHS float and entourage, Benson 4-H Club, Northeast School marchers and Brownie Troop 313, Senior Citizens float, Proctor High School Band, PHS float and marchers, Dana School marchers, Castleton State College float.

Section Three — MSJ Queen Kristi Brown, MSJ Band and majorettes, Lincoln School marchers and Troop 576, Actors' Repertory float, Jerry Dubeau's float, Russell Berry's marchers, Northwest School marchers, car with Miss Vermont Pre-Teen Megan Holleran and Miss Little Star Tiffany Smith, Kurt Keller's three-wheel motorcycle, WSYB float.

Section Four — West Rutland High School Queen Susan Trepanier, WRHS Band and majorettes, gypsies' float, Southeast School marchers, Batman and Outsiders float, Good Ship Lollipop float, Freedom Knights Drum & Bugle Corps, Mr. Jack O' Lantern, city police car.

the Center Street hill got lost climbing up the Washington Street hill, Cioffredi remembered. You might say the theme for that parade was the "Hills-Streets Blues."

Cioffredi was happy to have most of the mistakes happen the first year. Actually, it might have been better to have the goof-ups spread out over 25 years, but you couldn't fault Cioffredi looking on the bright side.

Rutland being the strange place it is, the Halloween Parade caught on and gradually attracted peripheral events such as the Mr. Pumpkin Head and Pumpkin Princess contests.

Mr. Pumpkin Head was actually much older than the parade and was renamed Jack O' Lantern several years before the first parade. Some oldtimers can remember the first Mr. Pumpkin Head as being City Fire Chief Al Koltoski. The first Mr. Jack O' Lantern of record was Dean Rippon in 1961.

There's no competition to being chosen Top Pumpkin of the Community. The recreation department just picks some well-known local figure and the kids try to guess who it is from clues distributed by the media.

While Mr. or Ms. Jack O' Lantern usually catches some razzing for receiving the dubious distinction, there is some honor in being chosen from among your schoolmates as Pumpkin Princess. The first such honoree of record was Eileen Keenan from Mt. Saint Joseph Academy.

But if Rutland's Halloween is remembered for one thing, it's Batman and the Marvel Comic characters. According to the recreation department, the comic super-heroes (Batman, Flash and Spiderman) first joined the parade in 1969, but Batman has said he can remember drawing staves in Rutland as far back as 1956.

The turn of the decade, 1970, was THE year for comic book characters. Marvel featured Rutland's parade in its October issues and sent 30 super-heroes and super-villains to participate.

Rutland continued to draw attention in 1971 and 1972 with more stories in the Batman and Defenders comics. Characters from both Marvel and National Periodical Publications showed up for the Halloween parade, with comic strip writers dressing the parts.

Not so many superheroes show up any more, but this year's parade is expected to have at least Batman, Supergirl and a few others.

The parade also has grown in size, to four sections and 44 anticipated entries this year.

The parade will start on Oct. 31 at 6:30 p.m., although parade entrants must gather behind the Rutland Shopping Plaza 45 minutes earlier to set the lineup.

The parade will file onto Merchants Row at the Firestone end of the plaza and turn right onto Center Street. Then it will turn left onto Wales Street, left onto West Street and again left onto Merchants Row to get back to the plaza.

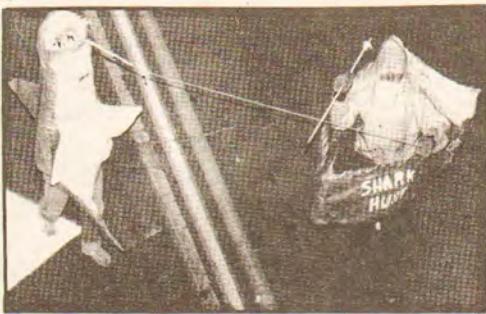

After the parade, all are asked to gather in the Center Street Alley for the unveiling of Mr. Jack O' Lantern and awarding of trophies for Most Creative Float, Most Original Float, Best in Show and Best Costumed Band. For those who guessed Mr. Jack O'Lantern's identity, a drawing will be held for a new bicycle.

Time for Children, Thoughts of Childhood

By TIM DONAHUE

When Halloween rolls around, it's enough to make you want to be a kid again.

Every year, adults go through the motions of celebrating the festival of ghouls and goblins. They throw Halloween parties, down cider and donuts and hold costume contests.

But let's face it, youngsters have a monopoly on this market.

On the night of Oct. 31, the streets swarm with pre-adolescent monsters. What is it about this time-honored festival that makes even the most cold-hearted people open their doors to these pint-sized confectionary pirates of the night?

And what better place to celebrate the macabre than Vermont?

Skeletal trees, murky evening skies and howling October winds make the perfect backdrop for Halloween. After all, could you imagine trying to get into the Halloween spirit amidst California beaches and palm trees?

When my friends and I were young, Halloween provided a much-needed break from the back-to-school routine.

In fact, we charted the progress of fall in terms of how many weeks away Halloween was.

The prime topic, of course, was "What are you gonna be?" The costume plans always started out elaborate, but became more practical as the day neared. After all, dressing up as a giant pumpkin is a great idea, but logistical considerations tend to get in the way.

The tried-and-true last resort was to dress up as a vampire. Most local supermarkets sold inexpensive vampire make-up kits, which included fingernails, fake blood, and the vital component of any red-blooded ersatz vampire, a set of pearly white fangs.

This choice, no doubt, was inspired by our television hero, Barnabas Collins, the vampire on Dark Shadows, an old afternoon soap opera filled with witches, werewolves and other monsters.

Even before we finalized our costumes, the first order of business was to build a Halloween dummy.

New England's abundance of fallen autumn leaves provides the ideal raw material for Halloween dummies. Besides, every leaf you stuff inside a mannequin's shirt is one that won't need to be raked up.

The best warm-up for the event, especially in Rutland's case, was the annual Halloween parade downtown. Whether the parade was held Halloween night or a few days before, it always whipped up the costume-and-candy fervor. The highlight was when Marvel Comics featured Rutland and the city's parade in its Halloween issues.

The last order of business was mapping out the trick-or-treating route. Our costumed rampages would take us around four or five blocks, until our candy bags got too heavy or our legs ran out of steam.

The custom is to ring doorbells and shout "Trick or Treat!" when the door is answered. No one ever turned us down, and I wonder how or whether we would have retaliated.

Trick or treaters come of age when they are allowed to make the route without a parent or two tagging along. This age of liberation varies depending upon the children and the parents.

By third grade usually, having an uncostumed elder as part of your trick-or-treat entourage marked you for school-yard ridicule the next day.

The biggest gray area of the entire Halloween business is deciding where one is too old to go Trick or Treating. Our rule was "you're only as young as you feel."

But, as the cliche says, all good things must come to an end.

For the true Halloween enthusiast, the transition is a strange and slightly sad matter.

One year you're making the rounds as a clown, a hobo, or if all else failed, a vampire. The next year, you are confined to the living room, doling out candy to the costumed masses.

Mr. O'Lantern Clues

In case you missed the Mr. Jack O'Lantern clues during the past two weeks, here they are again.

One lucky Rutland child who guessed Mr. Jack O'Lantern's identity will win a bicycle donated by K-Mart. The child must be present at the drawing to win. This will take place at the conclusion of the parade in Center Street Alley.

Monsters

Frightful Stuff Of Nightmares

By ED BARNA

"A sleeping child gives me the impression of a traveler in a very far country," Emerson wrote in his journal.

At Halloween we have a chance to see how far the latest generation has gone. Kids' costumes are dreams turned inside out.

Whether or not there are more cows than people in Vermont, there are certainly more monsters, even if adults don't dream about them at all. I say this with confidence because I once did a monster census while teaching poetry writing to sixth graders.

Admittedly this took place in New Hampshire, which all good Vermonters know has a moral landscape like that of Mars. And this was during Nixon's second term, something of a peak period for monsters. (Johnny Carson, on late night television, was able to create a monstrous toilet paper shortage merely by joking about the possibility of one.)

But childhood is its own universe, so I think the results are valid enough to be worth sharing.

I hit on the idea after asking classes to write about their dreams. Awake, kids can be depressingly conformist and especially in school it may seem that few of them perserved any individuality.

But in dreams, even the most predictable car-crazy numb-dumb can do things nobody else would ever, well, dream of doing. "One time I dreamed I was a mouse and I could see an egg after me so I hid in his hair." Would you dare to do that?

"Everything was getting closer and closer and I felt a funny touch on my bed and on me and I could see funny colors that were writing all over me," one girl wrote. Could you have been that patient? I found it helped kids to deal with their personal demons if they knew others faced similar foes. So I asked everyone to tell all the monsters they had ever dreamed then took the list through as many classes as possible to ask who had had a similar monster appear in their dreams. (Average class size that year was 33.)

Murderers topped the list (30 kids per class) with axe murderers a special terror. This was before the statistics on child disappearance were widely known, but TV murderers and "I'll kill you," parents were common then as now. Not too surprisingly, "mutilated people" were second, at 26.

Next came "giant insects," at 22 per class. This I take as an example of kids perceiving the world honestly and objectively, as in the story "The Emperor's

New Clothes." Insects, not people, are the world's owners — by numbers, total weight, chances of surviving a nuclear war...

Next came a surprise — "someone under the bed" had visited 21 of 33. Later I learned from the dictionary of regional English that Americans have an astonishing number of names for the soft rolls of dust that accumulate under beds: moots, woos, dust kittens, woolies, collywobbles, rats, diffleuzz, and over 100 others.

To paraphrase Robert Frost, home is where when you have to go you have to come back. The undead made their perennial appearance, haunting 20 or so in each class. No wonder "rest in peace" has gone out of fashion, together with its ambiguous reminder "until we meet again."

Star Wars and Master of the Universe freaks will be pleased to know that even back then "Martians, UFOs, etc., " rated high, at 18. "Little green men" were particularly apt to pop up.

Fire rated a little over 16 — another example of kids essential realism and sanity. Anybody else out there who has wood stove nightmares is invited to write to me.

Teachers, by some strange quirk, came in exactly tied with vampires, at about 16. Both were a little ahead of robbers, kidnappers, madmen, evil parents, and tidal waves, all at about 13. By another weird coincidence the police and the Mafia drew the same rating, a little less than 9.

The devil, unhappily for fundamentalists, placed a little behind the Creature from the Black Lagoon at just under 12, and rats did better than both, nearly equaling parents.

That far down in the list the results get mushy.

A few observations: — the Bomb, at about 7, didn't do as well as the Blob, at over 8. Dinosaurs did OK, at about 10, but were ranked out by the hot water heater, at around 12. Current TV and movie extravaganzas spawn epic epidemics of nightmares, such as the Earthquakes, Towering Infernos, and Bermuda Triangles that happened to be popular back then.

Many more signs of brain undeath were exhumed than can be exhibited. The whole wax museum is there in kids' minds: giants, skeletons, spiders, werewolves, ghouls, mummies, witches, robots, goblins, Frankensteins, Godzillas, mad scientists — even the electric shaver.

I will leave you with a definition: imagination is how far you can go in your mind without being eaten by a monster.

Sweet dreams!

Batman and Friends Psyched for Parade

9-24

By LOIS WEBBY

BIFF, POW, ZAP, ZOWIE!
The 25th Anniversary Halloween Parade approaches and once more Batman will leave Gotham City to thrill Rutland youngsters and oldsters alike.

Twenty-five years ago, John W. Cioffredi, superintendent of Recreation and Parks, dreamed up the parade when he first joined the department. "I was looking for an idea for youngsters and their parents to do together," he said last week.

Never did he imagine that a straggling group of elementary school children led by Mayor Dan Healy and Caspar the Ghost would eventually grow to such grand proportions.

In past years the parade has drawn hundreds of Halloween revelers from across the United States and foreign countries and has been featured in national magazines and on television.

That first parade remains Cioffredi's favorite because it was then, he said, all the mistakes were made — some with rather comic results.

The arduous first parade route, starting at Main Street Park down Center Street back up Washington Street hill and back to the park, had the children of Rutland's elementary schools strewn out everywhere along the way, Cioffredi said.

"What kids we didn't lose going down the hill we lost going up the other hill," he said. "Needless to say, we needed a new route."

Batman (a local comic strip buff) was also there from the beginning, Cioffredi said, attracting other comic strip characters and infusing the parade with his enthusiasm.

In an exclusive interview Sunday night, Batman, who requested anonymity, revealed some memories of his favorite parades.

"My favorite memory is trying to make it to the float on time," he said. "That's the reason the Batman float is always at the end of the parade."

"In the 1956 parade, I ran down Center Street hill, scared two old ladies in front of the library, caused a truck driver to squeal his brakes in protest, ran through the Center Street alley and just barely made it on time," Batman recalled.

Another favorite memory involved a particularly evil genius from Gotham City.

"A certain person who lived at 264 West St., who appeared as the Red Skull, jumped on the back of the float, went down Wales Street just barely hanging on, fell off the float and skulked away home. That was the one time the Red Skull was truly defeated by the forces of good," he said.

At the height of its glory the parade attracted 181 different comic book characters, editorial comic characters, and newspaper strip characters in full costumes — including Captain Klutz, Batman said.

As the years went by, he said, there has been more and more community participation, despite waning attendance of outside groups.

Holding the parade on Halloween night has caused some drop-off in attendance, said Batman, but Rutland's parade is still great.

"The parade is responsible for bringing back the Mardi Gras image of Halloween," he said. The holiday had dimmed in comparison to other holidays in public spirit, he said, until the parade revived it.

"Now many local restaurants and social clubs have Halloween parties and it is a big social event. We brought it (that spirit) back and we intend to keep it that way as long as I'm alive," he said.

One revelation that came out of the interview is that Batman has not always appeared in the parade as himself. "Batman is the master of disguise," said Rutland's caped crusader. He revealed, just for Herald readers, that he has appeared in past parades as the Frog Prince and once as Santa Claus.

Although Batman and other costumed celebrities are regulars, the Halloween parade has not relied on the usual politicians and dignitaries.

But in honor of the parade's anniversary, Cioffredi is hoping to bring back former Mayor Healy (now in a nursing home) and Caspar the Ghost (probably grown up now according to Ciofredi).

Politicians are rarely invited to march in the parade, Cioffredi said, because of the proximity of election day. The parade is and always was meant to be pure fun for everyone and shades of politicking would change that atmosphere, he said.

Tad Nunez, program director of the Recreation and Parks Department, said one of his favorite memories of the parade was when a local man left the sidewalk and pulled his entire family in a wagon along with the floats, high school marching bands, and the Halloween queen.

It is that spirit that Nunez wishes to encourage.

Every goblin, comic book character, gypsy, ghost and fairy princess in or outside the area is welcome to join the parade and march along.

Aldermen Consider Buying Sugar Maple

By MEGAN PRICE

A request to purchase the former Sugar Maple Children's Center Inc. on North Church Street has been referred to the aldermanic Recreation Committee.

Recreation and Parks Department Superintendent John Cioffredi asked the aldermen to consider the purchase as an addition to the city's recreation facilities.

"I have reviewed the property and building," Cioffredi said, "and I can definitely ascertain that it could be a valuable addition to our recreational facilities."

He said, "The property and location make it ideal for use as a recreation facility and I recommend that the city look into the possibility of acquiring this property and negotiating a more realistic acceptable figure."

The main building on the 1 1/2-acre property is two-stories measuring 28 feet by 48 feet on two floors. A new wing, constructed about one year ago, added another two stories measuring 28 feet by 36 feet.

Also included is a smaller building with a fireplace, a train caboose, a swimming pool and separate wading pool which are surrounded by fences, and a cement block bath house with toilets.

The property is for sale at $110,000. But a letter from a local real estate agent sent to Cioffredi said the owner is encouraging offers on the property.

Alderman Linda Welch said she would like a recommendation from the Recreation Committee on the property's value to the city. If the aldermen want the property, a bond issue might be drawn up for the March 1985 election, she said, and the voter could decide whether to purchase the property.

Alderman John Cassarino is chairman of the committee. No date has yet been set to study the matter.

In a separate action, a request by Police Chief Charles Spoon to sell five of his department's old radios was referred to Welch's Public Safety Committee at her request.

In a letter to the board, the chief asked for permission to sell the radios to other law enforcement

Rugby Club Wins Fourth Straight

The Rutland Area Rugby Club extended its winning streak to four games with a convincing defeat of Lyndon State College, 30-6, Saturday at the College of St. Joseph.

The Rutland Recreation-sponsored Club played their best rugby game to date. The forwards had a fine day getting the ball to the backs, as Rutland took an early lead, taking a 16-0 first-half lead.

In the second half, Lyndon had several scoring opportunities created by Rutland penalties, but could not convert. Lyndon finally scored late in the game, but not until Rutland had scored 30 points.

Rutland's next game is at home against Johnson State College Saturday, October 20, at the College of St. Joseph.

Aldermen

The property also might be used to offer expanded recreation pre-school programs, adult recreation, cooking classes, special weekend recreation retreats and a new park and art studios, Cioffredi said.

The parcel is offered for sale at $110,000, but lower offers will be considered, Cioffredi said in an earlier letter to the aldermen.

The superintendent said the buildings should be inspected by a contractor or engineer to decide if there are any problems with the facility and the state of repairs, if needed.

Two pools on the property also should be inspected, he said.

Cioffredi cautioned the mayor, "Whatever is in the way of securing this facility it should be considered as an answer to the proposed of a new community center."

He said she wanted Cioffredi to pinpoint exactly what programs would be transferred from Center Street to North Church Street if the property were purchased.

He said she also wanted to know if Cioffredi at the Lawrence Recreation Center should be given the deed to the property would allow it. The Victorian home was a gift to the city and may contain stipulations that might not allow that sale, she said.

Alderman Laurent LaMontagne said he was not sure the residential North Church Street area was the right place for the city's recreation center. But he said he would approve of a study.

Smith said even if the purchase was a good idea for the city, taxpayers might not be able to afford it. "We are in a terrible bind," she said of the city's financial condition. (Alderman) Linda (Welch) suggested a bond issue and I have no problem with that. But I think the voters are likely to say we can't afford any more," Smith said.

But LaMontagne said, "I'm as opposed to a bond as I am to a tax increase."

Alderman John Cassarino, the committee chairman, said the city might be able to purchase the property without local tax dollars if a grant or revenue sharing money was used.

And Donnelly said lowered maintenance costs, heat and light bills might make the Sugar Maple purchase a better investment for a recreation center than the Center Street building.

The committee agreed to appoint Alderman Thomas Donahue, Donnelly and Cioffredi to study the purchase and use of the North Church Street property and the disposal of the current recreation center.

agencies. The radios are approximately 12 years old but might be of some use to smaller departments, Spoon said.

But Welch, a past president of the Regional Ambulance Service, said police departments aren't the only organizations that might need the radios. She said area ambulance squads should also be considered. Welch now serves as the aldermanic representative to the RAS.

Her suggestion brought no opposition from other board members, although it did prompt a few smiles from fellow aldermen. The board agreed to send the chief's request to her committee for consideration.

City Panel Considers Buying Land

By MEGAN PRICE

Could the Lawrence Recreation Center become the new home of the Rutland City police department?

That was an alternative suggested by Aldermen Shirley Smith and Patricia Donnelly Tuesday when the aldermanic Recreation Committee met to consider the purchase of the Sugar Maple Children's Center Inc. property on North Church Street for the recreation department.

Recreation and Parks Superintendent John Ciolfredi has asked the aldermen to consider purchasing the defunct day-care center to augment the city's recreation programs.

The city's police department wants a new home. Police Chief Charles Spoon said last week his officers need more room and the City Hall station presents a danger to the public when violent prisoners are brought into the station.

At the same time, the city is faced with expensive revisions to the Lawrence Center on Center Street to make it accessible to the handicapped.

Federal grants are available to help with the renovations.

But Welch, a past president of the Regional Ambulance Services, said police departments aren't the only organizations that might need the radios. She said area ambulance squads should also be considered. Welch now serves as the aldermanic representative to the R.A.S.

Many of these things were accomplished through changes of federal regulations, he added.

A Happy, Harrowing Halloween

By MONICA ALLEN

Hundreds of masked and unmasked men, women, children lined the streets of downtown Rutland to watch in amazement what one woman described as the "best unparade there ever was."

It was a brisk starry night, and a sliver of a moon hung mysteriously in the sky as tiny and large ghouls began to flock downtown.

A tiny ape in jeans and winter coat let his mother out of the car on Wales Street, and both scouted along the sidewalk to take their place with hundred of others awaiting the 25th annual Halloween Parade.

The fun had reached a frenzy long before the parade began at 6:30 p.m. with onlookers wandering the streets and checking each others' costumes for originality.

One of the best-costumed men or women — one couldn't tell which — strolled in leotards down Center Street. He or she was greasy and salty and wrapped in the familiar red carton of a MacDonald's french fry holder. The french fries eventually encountered a long-legged Big Bird.

Standing at the corner of Merchants Row and Center Street was a burlap-bagged woman impersonating death.

"It's fun," Death said from her gaunt white face. "And there aren't too many Deaths around," she added, raising her eyebrows proudly.

As the time drew near, many moved closer to Merchants Row where the parade would kick off.

People stood six and seven deep at the side of the carless streets. Children in full regalia perched on the sidewalks and some climbed to their parent's shoulders for better viewing.

The annual Halloween Parade sponsored by the Rutland Recreation Department began with the usual dignitaries and forces of good in the city. Police Chief Charles Spoon and Capt. Douglas Williams drove one car and, for a touch of the bizarre, were accompanied by the K-nine unit. The dog spoke not word through the parade but watched in amazement from the back of the wagon.

Then came former Mayor Dan Healy, who had ridden in the first parade. Mayor John J. Daley, wearing a green down jacket, waved from his car.

The dignitaries were past early in the parade, except for an occasional high school queen. But the queens, sitting on the back seats of convertibles were well interspersed with the bizarre floats readied in the spirit of this most bizarre night.

At last, the giant green dragon with luminous eyes loomed on the nearby horizon. The medieval demon was trapped on a trailer behind the City Fire Department truck. Tiny masked punksters, pirates, Michael Jacksons, ghosts and monsters popped their smiling faces from the back of the fire truck. The float picked up the prize for Most Original Float.

All eyes were riveted to the street as one school after another vied for most bizarre and humorous.

Mill River Union High School of Clarendon had a dramatic line-up starting with two white horses and featuring a circus riding on the backs of trailer trucks. The giant shiny animals clung to the cages and leered out at the crowd, but the best part of the circus was a caged ape wheeled down the street by a five-boy team.

Mount Saint Joseph Acadia picked up the Best Costume Band prize for their sweat suits with mouse-eared hoods. Miss Paula's Theatrical Dance School picked up the Best In Show prize for its float of many nations.

More than 30 children rode on flat-bed trailers with their outfits each drawn from a different country — Mexico, China, Russia, Italy and more.

A collage of young and old ones organized by KC's Tavern of Woodstock organized by through town on the back of no name cruising crew picked up the Most Gritty Frightful truck. The that much cash, he said.

Recreation

"We might have to cover the difference until they can accumulate it," he told the committee.

But even if construction of the ball fields began next spring, the fields would not be ready until early 1987, Cioffredi said.

Alderman Shirley Smith said she did not want to recommend acceptance of the grant until talking with City Treasurer Ronald Graves. Smith said she wanted to be sure there is money available to pay for the local share of construction costs if the softball association fails to live up to its promise. "We have enough problems with money now as it is," she said.

But Alderman Laurent LaMontagne said there is no way for city officials to know how much money may be on hand two years from now when the fields are constructed.

And, he said, even if the city had to pay the money, it would be a good buy for the taxpayers. "I think if the city can buy two softball fields for $30,000 there's no reason to squawk," he said.

The committee composed of Aldermen Patricia Donnelly, Thomas Donahue, LaMontagne, Smith and Chairman John Cassarino, voted to recommend that the board of aldermen build the new fields.

But the same committee voted against making an offer on the former day-care center property.

Last summer, Cioffredi asked the aldermen to consider purchasing the property. The superintendent said he could use the facility for a variety of programs. But the bank holding the mortgage wants $110,000 for it, he said. Cioffredi said he thought it would be a good buy for the city at half that amount.

But even at that, the aldermen agreed, the city simply doesn't have the money.

"It's a dead issue as far as I'm concerned," LaMontagne said. "I'd like to see the city own the facility. But there's no way we can ever come up with the money this year. There's no way in hell."

Cassarino agreed. "I feel the property is worth considering. But I don't see how we can do it. We don't have the money," he said.

Donnelly said if the building still was for sale next year and the city's finances improved, the aldermen might want to reconsider. But the committee members agreed to recommend to the full board not to pursue the matter.

The committee then went into executive session to consider a request by Giancola to pay him between $14,000 and $20,000. Giancola has asked the city to pay to replace a back door and ramp to the theater.

Panel Opposes Land Purchase

By MEGAN PRICE

The aldermanic Recreation Committee voted unanimously Monday not to attempt to purchase the former Sugar Maple Children's Center on North Church Street.

And they turned down a request by Rutland contractor Joseph Giancola, who owns the former Paramount Theater on Center Street, to pay him for a ramp and back door removed from the theater during the construction of the Center Street Alley.

But two new softball fields costing $197,220 may be on the horizon for city land adjacent to the Northeast School.

City Recreation Superintendent John Cioffredi said federal and state officials have promised almost $150,000 in grant money to help build the fields.

Cioffredi said he applied for a grant about two years ago in part because of a request by an association comprising representatives of the city's softball leagues.

Total cost of the two softball fields would be $197,220. The federal government would contribute $98,610, the state another $49,305 and city government or the softball leagues would be expected to match that state allocation, Cioffredi said.

The local softball association promised to help raise money for the construction of additional playing fields, he said.

Through player fees, raffles and other fund-raising efforts, the association has almost $19,000 in a special account dedicated to the construction of new fields, Cioffredi said.

The league has promised another $31,000 to pay for the local share of the construction costs required by the grants, Cioffredi said. But it may take the league a few years to come up — as requested by Donnelly — to use any money paid him by the city to fix up the property. Giancola was not present for Monday's meeting.

The aldermen went into executive session for about 15 minutes to discuss the matter. When they opened the doors, Donnelly moved that the committee "deny Giancola's request for restitution for ingress and egress from the Paramount Theater."

The committee approved the motion, with the exception of Smith.

Asked about the committee's action, Cassarino said it was up to Giancola to pursue the money. If he wants to get money from the city, he will have to take the matter to court, he said.

Rutland Stamp Club Celebrates 50 Years Of Philatelic Fun

By YVONNE DALEY

Fred Baldwin of Rutland was 12 years old and living on Baxter Street when he began collecting postage stamps. On his way to the old Meldon School, he'd retrieve parcel post stamps from boxes in the alleys.

Many years later — Baldwin didn't say how many — he has an impressive collection of stamps from five continents and has won numerous awards. He won another Friday night. He was one of three people to receive awards from the American Philatelic Society.

The awards were given at the Rutland County Stamp Club's 50th anniversary party held at The Palms in Rutland.

Also receiving an award was Tom B. McDevitt, who is a charter member of the club and an active collector who organizes the club's display at the Rutland fair each year and does a considerable amount of promotional work for the organization.

Lester LeDrew of Springfield, an elderly man of few words and a good sense of humor, also won an award. LeDrew, who has an impressive collection of stamps, promised those at the meeting he wouldn't say much. "All I ask is that you come to the meetings," he said, noting the large crowd at the festivities, larger than at meetings.

RCSC president James Mongeon gave the welcoming speech, in which he told how Mr. and Mrs. Alexander C. Mason gathered a few friends interested in stamps together 50 years ago and the organization was created.

It is the longest existing and functioning stamp club in Vermont, Mongeon said.

Secretary Charles LaChance gave a presentation of the group's history, including its 25th anniversary, which was recognized with great fanfare, and the fire that caused the only interruption in the club's display at the Rutland fair in 1970.

The stamp club's first official meeting was held in the local chamber of commerce headquarters with nine charter members. Its first philatelic exhibition for the public was in October 1935, held in the auditorium now known as the Nella Grimm Fox Room of the Rutland Library.

A slide program on collecting stamps and historical postcards was given by Michael McMorrow.

Those at the meeting were presented with a collectable "cover," or envelope, commemorating the group's golden anniversary year, handpasted by Rutland Postmaster George Bond and designed by McDevitt.

COTA Signs Agreement For Theater

By STEPHEN BAUMANN

An area arts group Tuesday passed the first stage in its effort to develop performing arts center in downtown Rutland.

Officials of the Center on the Alley Inc. signed a contract Tuesday afternoon to purchase the former Paramount Theater on Center Street from Rutland contractor Joseph Giancola for $185,000.

The group expects to hold a closing on the property by the end of January, said COTA president Susan Darrow of Mendon.

The concept of restoring the historic theater and converting it into an arts center has been discussed since 1979. COTA was formed a year ago to do just that. For months, group members have been planning ways to raise money to buy the building and negotiating a purchase agreement with Giancola.

"It's large relief, I'll tell you that. It's been a long time coming," Darrow said Tuesday.

"I can see this thing as a real catalyst for downtown in particular, and for the community as a whole. It's like a moth being drawn to the flame ... this is the flame for downtown Rutland," she said.

Tuesday's contract signing was the first of many hurdles the group will have to overcome before the stage lights are turned on.

Darrow said 35-40 group members will take to the streets Thursday and Friday with petitions supporting a March vote on an $800,000 bond issue in Rutland City. Money from the bond would be used to renovate the aging theater.

City officials have said they support the idea of a bond initiative, but asked for a show of support from city residents, Darrow said. She said they hope to get 700 signatures on the petitions by Friday.

(See Page 24: Theater)

Theater

If the bond passes at the March elections, COTA would likely deed the property to the city, Darrow said. This would have to be done, she said, because the city might need to have some form of ownership in the bond-supported property.

The city also is a non-profit entity, she said, and may be better able to get additional funding.

Darrow said COTA members would work hard to win passage of the bond, but they also would look for other money to renovate the theater in case the city article were defeated.

"It only makes good sense to be working on other sources of funding. You can't count on anything," she said.

Darrow said the group got some more good news Tuesday night when Paul Bruhn, executive director of the Preservation Trust of Vermont, informed COTA that it would give a $1,000 grant toward the project. This money will be used for marketing, Darrow said.

Darrow gave credit to the Vermont National Bank and James Layden, Vermont National vice president, for the bank's willingness to loan COTA the money to buy the theater.

Vermont National loaned the money after COTA was able to secure pledges from businesses and individuals to pay any losses that might come if the project were to fall through.

Present at the contract signing Tuesday were Giancola, his wife, Barbara; his attorney, Anthony Abatiell; Rutland stock broker Thomas Ryan and Rutland lawyer William Meub.

Coupon Advice To Be Repeated

Melissa Lawlor will repeat her popular workshop "Cash In With Coupons" from 1 to 3 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 23, at the Deer Street Senior Center.

Since then she has shared her coupons system and secrets with dozens of people at workshops sponsored by the University of Vermont Extension Service and with countless others as a featured guest on several local radio programs.

Participants in Wednesday's workshop will have a chance to start their own coupon system, with Lawlor's help, and swap the coupons with others at the meeting.

The workshop is open to the public but pre-registration is required by Tuesday, Jan. 22. People can call Dorothy Paul at the Rutland Recreation Department Senior Center at 773-1853 to register. There will be a $3 fee for workshop materials.

Depot Statue Praised

I just had to respond to the individual who called the new statue in Depot Park ludicrous. His main contention was that tourists would have a poor impression of our city because of a sculpture which appears frivolous.

Well, I beg to disagree. I love the new statue.

I have never met the artist, but his piece totally fascinates me and my six-year-old son. A couple of times a week we go out of our way to drive by to see if "the dog got away yet."

It's always still there and always evokes enjoyment and lively discussion.

We even stopped one time to touch it and my son climbed all over it.

To see him truly enjoy art in this way makes me hope that he will continue to appreciate art as he grows. With a piece like this to start, he's learning that art is interesting and engrossing, not just stuffy old sculptures of heroes.

Maybe the other writer thinks we as a city need something more dignified for tourists to remember us by. I'm just glad that there are others who feel that a statue for the enjoyment of those who live here all the time is important. We love it and most important we enjoy it. Thanks to everyone involved.

Giancola Sues City for Theater Damage

1/23 By LOIS WEBBY

After failing to reach a settlement with city officials, Rutland businessman Joseph Giancola has filed a $100,000 lawsuit against the City of Rutland for damages to the Paramount Theater.

In addition to the city, Giancola named several companies involved in the construction of the Center Street Alley project. Named in the Rutland Superior Court lawsuit were Whitman and Howard Inc., a Massachusetts engineering and designing firm; Sabia Construction Co., general contractors from Windsor; F.P. Elinicki, Inc., a West Rutland excavating and demolition contractor; and Warren Conner, the city engineer.

The suit filed by Rutland lawyer Anthony F. Abatell said that during the construction of the alley, the defendants "negligently, knowingly, willingly and intentionally" removed a ramp and a door providing a rear exit to the theater.

The city failed to replace the exit or compensate Giancola and his wife, Barbara Giancola, the co-owner of the theater, the suit said. In December after several attempts to settle the matter, the Board of Aldermen turned down Giancola's request that he be paid for the ramp and back door.

Both were lost when the bricks in the Center Street Alley were laid a few years ago. Giancola did not own the building at that time, but he has told the aldermen that city officials agreed before the alley's construction that the city would pay for a replacement rear door and ramp no matter who owned the building.

The suit, filed in court Tuesday, said that irreversible structural damage was done to the building by the removal of fill and support from spots near the building's wall and foundation.

The facade of the old theater also was damaged by removing layers and parts of the building's wall, the suit said.

The city is liable for all damages to adjacent properties caused by anyone under contract to do construction on the Center Street Alley, the suit said.

The defendants have rendered the building unsuitable for sale, the suit said, and have caused the property to fall below fair market value.

In the future, the suit said, "great amounts of money (will have to be) spent to rectify and correct the damage and put the building back into proper, serviceable and safe condition."

Meanwhile, Giancola has agreed to sell the theater to the Center on the Alley Inc. for $165,000.

City Arts Center Petitioners Have Half Needed Signatures

1/23 BY MEGAN PRICE

With less than 48 hours before Thursday's filing deadline, proponents of a downtown arts center have about half the signatures needed on a petition for a ballot request.

Richard Rohe, marketing director for the Center on the Alley Inc., said Tuesday the group had gathered 618 signatures on petitions so far.

The group wants to place this question on the March ballot: "Shall the City of Rutland accept title to the property known as the Paramount Theater on Center Street and issue its bonds in an amount not to exceed $800,000 for the purpose of renovating the property to facilitate the development of a center for the arts, education and community uses?"

Group members had hoped for more signatures at this point. The cold weather has hampered door-to-door efforts, Rohe said.

Rohe said petitions are in most large downtown businesses. "From Book King to the Rutland Restaurant to the Back Home to the banks," he said, petitions are out awaiting city residents' signatures.

Last Saturday, a group of Mill River Union High School students canvassed downtown for voters' signatures, he said. They got more than 200 people to sign.

Rohe said nine out of 10 people who have been told about the project approve, but many of those who work downtown, where most petitions are situated, live outside the city.

To help speed the effort, some supporters have taken petitions inside city offices and businesses to get signatures, he said.

Rohe urged any city voter interested in the theater project to stop at a downtown business and sign up to ensure placement of the item on the March ballot.

COTA Close To Its Goal

A Rutland arts group was near its goal Wednesday night in a drive to place a performing arts center bond item on the city ballot.

Members of the Center on the Alley Inc. had 1,157 signatures on a petition seeking the bond vote, said COTA director Richard Rohe Wednesday night.

For the question to be placed on the ballot, 1,204 registered city voters — 10 percent of the voter checklist — must sign the petition. COTA officials are aiming for more than the required signatures, because some are bound to be disqualified.

"Right now, it looks like we're going to make it," Rohe said.

The petition seeks a ballot item asking whether city voters will accept title to the former Paramount Theater on Center Street and issue $800,000 in bonds for renovation of the building. COTA members hope the building can be renovated and used as a performing arts center.

COTA is in the process of buying the former theater.

The petitions must be presented to the Rutland city clerk on Thursday by 5 p.m. Rowe said anyone with a petition should bring it to his office at the Rutland Business Journal in the Chittenden Bank building in downtown Rutland by 4 p.m. Thursday.

People can arrange for a special ice skating birthday party at the Giorgetti Park skating area by making reservations one week in advance at the recreation department office.

The $5 fee includes use of the rink, tables and chairs and free skating for party participants.

The rink is still open to the public during birthday parties. The party hours may only be scheduled during the regular open ice skating times.

COTA

"The first thing that has to be done is to get our certification as a nonprofit institution from the IRS," he said. COTA submitted several applications, but each time they were returned with a request for more information. "We've delayed our aggressive efforts to fund-raise until we have that in hand," he said.

COTA's most recent application for nonprofit status has received tacit verbal commitment that it will be approved, Rohe said. In another four-to-six weeks, that piece of paper should

Theater Boosters Plan Campaign

By MEGAN PRICE

Proponents of the Paramount Theater arts center project will work this week to organize a marketing strategy for the pending $800,000 March 5 city ballot bond issue.

Richard Rohe, marketing director for Center On The Alley Inc., said Sunday COTA volunteers would seek pledges of support, donations, group and individual endorsements and more in the next few weeks to boost their cause.

The master plan for all this will take much of Rohe's and other COTA members' time in the next few days, he said.

"We are doing some research and we will develop an advertising program that will be subsidized by local retailers and leaders in the community. We will solicit funds for that," Rohe said.

"It's not going to be easy. Nobody gives it much of a chance," he said of voter passage of the bond issue. "But nobody thought we could raise the signatures either in four or five days."

A voter petition bearing more than 1,400 signatures was delivered to the city clerk's office just a half-hour before Thursday's 5 p.m. filing deadline.

The petition asks city voters to accept title to the property known as the Paramount Theater on Center Street and to issue bonds in an amount not to exceed $800,000, to turn the theater into a "center for the arts, education and community uses."

City Clerk Rosemary Finley said 1,204 valid city voter signatures were needed to put the question before voters on the March 5 ballot. It will take officials in the city clerk's office several days to verify the signatures on the stack of petitions, she said.

By Wednesday, Finley said, she should know whether the voter initiative has earned a place on the ballot. If it does, it will be the first time in recent memory that a bond issue sponsored by voters has earned a place on a Town Meeting Day ballot in the city.

COTA members are waiting anxiously for Finley's decision. "As soon as she tells us it is OK, then we will begin our marketing efforts," Rohe said.

If the petitions fail to have garnered enough valid voter signatures, the aldermen could still call a special meeting to approve the item's placement on the ballot.

Proponents of the arts center pledged enough money recently to gain title to the property from owner and local contractor Joseph Giancola, with underwriting from the Vermont National Bank.

Rohe said COTA was willing to give the property to the city, without charging city taxpayers a cent. To cover the cost of the pledges put up by individual supporters of the project, a special fund drive will be staged later this year. "We will raise money to liquidate the pledges," Rohe said.

But the marketing director said several other steps must first be taken.

(See Page 28: COTA)

arrive, enabling COTA to become a tax write-off for donors, Rohe said.

Rohe said COTA members hoped to convince voters of the many benefits from a downtown cultural center.

The Shrewsbury resident, himself a downtown businessman, said he believed most downtown retailers supported the project.

"Downtown retailers, in my verbal conversations with them are very supportive of the theater," he said. "Several have mentioned it could be a real focal point of the next step in downtown revitalization.

"Many of the other people in the business community agree with the thought that a depository of culture like this will benefit in luring additional business and jobs to the region," he said.

But the voting public at large may still need to be convinced of that, he said.

When all that is accomplished, and if the bond item is approved in March by voters, there is still the matter of soliciting grants to help pay for the cost of running the arts center, he said. That, Rohe said, will come later.

Rutland Historical Society

WEST RUTLAND ROTARY CLUB

President Bob Allen led the group in singing the Rotary song at the Jan 21 meeting.

Don Cecere was wished happy birthday through the Rotarians singing. He did not appear to enjoy the melodious interlude. He was fined when he explained that his age was 26½.

Nick Phillips — a.k.a. Nick the Greek, cousin of Jimmy the Greek — won the 50-50 drawing. He put that money with his Super Bowl winnings — a grand total of $1.25.

President Bob reminded the members that the dues were payable. He also explained that some of the Rotary calendars to be distributed were misplaced. He asked the group to check for any extra ones that may have been inadvertently picked up for disbursement.

Pat Trepanier, program chairman, introduced John Cioffredi, superintendent of Rutland Recreation and Parks, as the guest speaker. Pat stated that John has an excellent recreation agenda. As West Rutland recreation director he called on John many times for information and ideas.

In today's society recreation is a vital service to a community. All ages of people are taken into consideration for programs. The many senior citizens activities and their facility in Rutland City are under the umbrella of Recreation and Parks.

To have a modern recreation and parks plan there has to be a strong desire in the community. This is shown politically and financially. A professional recreation director to be hired should have schooling and a knowledge of federal and state funding. The hot-shot athlete is no longer the person that is hired as recreation director any more.

John thought that some of the smaller towns could pool resources and offer good sound programs on a shared basis. All communities should look toward each other for strengths.

The members showed appreciation for his talk with a hearty round of applause.

President Bob appointed John Weiss as program chairman for the Jan. 28 meeting at 6:30 p.m. in the West Rutland Legion Hall.

Volleyball Meeting on February 19

2/12 Parks Department announced that the 1985 co-ed volleyball organization meeting will be held Tuesday, February 19, at 7 p.m. at the Lawrence Recreation Center.

Team representatives and new players are asked to attend the meeting. Registration fee per team is $80. Rosters may be obtained at the meeting. Rosters must be returned with full payment by Tuesday, March 5. Late rosters will not be accepted. Only two non-residents will be allowed on a roster. New players may be added to a roster up to the second game played. League play will begin the week of March 11 and continue through May.

Depending on the number of rosters received, there may be three leagues. A league division will be made up of a minimum of six teams, and a maximum of ten.

Petitions

what action could be taken in just such a case. He said Zetelski planned to contact the mayor Tuesday morning at City Hall to explain to Daley what his options are in this matter.

The board president said he supported the ballot item and favored bringing the question before the aldermen.

"I would encourage him

(Daley) to call a special meeting to give the board a chance to debate it," Short sleeve said. "Personally, I'll vote for it to be on the ballot."

COTA trustee Thomas C. Ryan said he was disappointed by the failure of the petitions. But he said he was optimistic the mayor and aldermen would agree to place the item on the ballot.

COTA members plan to meet

Wednesday night, he said.

"It seems to me we showed some support. I would hope the voters would have a chance to express their opinion. I recognize there are a lot of people who have some questions on it because of the cost. I know personally I pay a darn good tax on my house. But if we don't stabilize downtown, I know that in the future I will be paying more," he said.

Richard Rohe, COTA marketing director, agreed with Ryan.

"That's disappointing," he said upon learning that the petition effort failed. "I know a lot of people will be upset about it. But I knew it was going to be close. We just didn't have enough time."

"I hope the mayor and the Board of Aldermen will see fit to put it on the ballot," he added.

Theater Petition Fails to Qualify For Ballot Spot

1-29

By MEGAN PRICE

A petition to place an $800,000 Paramount Theater bond issue on the March ballot has fallen short by about 130 signatures.

Another petition asking for $16,000 to support an early education program at the Forest Park community center also failed to earn enough signatures, City Clerk Rosemary Finley said Monday.

It now will be up to Mayor John J. Daley and the Board of Aldermen to decide if either one of the items should be placed before voters on Town Meeting Day.

Daley took Monday off from work to move from his old home on Pleasant Street to his new house on Hilltop Terrace. He could not be reached for comment.

Daley has the authority to call a special meeting of the aldermen and ask them to consider placement of the items on the ballot.

A majority of the Board of Aldermen also can petition the mayor to call a special board meeting, according to the city charter.

The Paramount Theater petitions were submitted Thursday, just a half hour before the filing deadline, with more than 1,400 signatures on them. They were submitted by members of the Center on the Alley Inc., a group leading the drive to restore the old Center Street theater for use as a performing arts center.

COTA is in the process of buying the historic building. The group has proposed a city bond for $800,000 for building renovations. The proposed ballot question also stated the theater would be deeded to the city.

Finley told COTA members they needed 1,204 city voters' signatures to earn a place on the ballot. For voters to place a bond issue on a city ballot, the signatures of 10 percent of the city's voter checklist is required, City Attorney Frank Zetelski said last week.

Finley and First Assistant City Clerk Rosemary Pilon spent two days comparing each signature against the voter checklist.

Aldermanic Board President Howard Shortsleeve Jr. stopped by City Hall Monday just as Finley and Pilon were finishing checking the Paramount's four-inch thick stack of petitions against the checklist.

He stood silently by and watched as Finley and Pilon counted down the last few names on the petitions.

By 4:45 p.m., it was obvious that the Paramount item had failed to gain enough signatures. Finley said COTA had only about 1,074 valid signatures, about 130 short of what they needed to earn a place on the ballot.

With another half-page of names to be checked, Finley told Pilon to "Forget it. They're aren't going to make up the difference."

Shortsleeve said he had talked earlier with Zetelski to discuss

Rutland-Rec Sends Seven to Burlington

By CHUCK CLARINO

The third floor room in the Edwin Lawrence Recreation Center that serves as a training center for the Rutland Rec Boxing Club is seeing quite a bit of action these days.

Because of all the traffic, coach Tommy Garrow is all smiles. Garrow, Rutland-Rec coach/trainer for 12 years, is preparing his largest team ever to bring to Burlington's Memorial Auditorium Saturday for the first weekend of the 1985 Golden Gloves Tournament.

"I got seven boys and they're all good ones," Garrow said. "This is the biggest team I've had in all my years here."

But more than a big crowd has lifted the coach's spirits. There seems to be a unity of spirit that emanates from the room, and an influx of community support that has finally brought new equipment.

"We've finally got the new gloves, headgear and equipment that we need to field a championship team," said Garrow. "I have to thank the Bruce Fredette Party people, American Legion, the VFW, the Police Benevolent Society and individuals for their help. Now all we have to do is win some titles."

Garrow feels that he has the personnel to do just that.

Besides a pair of returning heavyweights in Marc Machain and Angello Iachetta, Garrow has a 156-pounder Paul Reis, who he has been working with for five months, and the Shaddock brothers — Chris, Scott, Dale and John — all four of them.

The Shaddocks have brought a definite family atmosphere to the old training room and it seems to be contagious.

"What I like about these kids is that they are winners," said Garrow. "Although they never boxed before they came to me, they were wrestlers and know what it's like to win."

"Once you get the feeling of winning, it's tough to settle for anything less."

After seven years of on and off work and four appearances in the Golden Gloves Tournament, Machain finally caught the winning feeling last year. He wants to repeat his success that brought him to the semifinals of the New England Tournament of Champions in the Super Heavyweight class. Machain's compact punching style is just starting to gather power, according to Garrow and plus he is in the best shape of his career.

Iachetta is more of stand-up fighter. Tall and strong, he can lapse into slugging it out rather than boxing. In his first attempt at the GG in 1984, Iachetta knocked down former champ Clarence Williams in the first round, but ran out of gas and lost a close decision. The devastating loss has been on Iachetta's mind all year.

"I want revenge," said Iachetta. "This time when they go down, they'll stay down."

Reis, the former Bellows Falls football player, won his first fight in December in Bennington, kayoing his foe in the first round with thunderous punches.

"He's built like a baby bull and is really aggressive," said Garrow.

Reis will have to have some sting in his punches to compete in the 156-pound class, traditionally one of the toughest and most competitive weights in GG boxing.

Johnny "Bones" Shaddock, is the youngest of the brothers four at 16, but was the first to come to Garrow in the fall of 1984.

"He came and soon after Chris (the oldest at 28) followed," said brother Dale. "Then Scott and I came along. It's been great working together and learning to box."

"I think Johnny has good style," said Garrow of his 112/118 pounder. "He's got some good moves."

Garrow traditionally works in the ring with all of his fighters, but this year, because of the numbers and his fighters size, the coach has concentrated on the lighter weights, while Machain spars with the heavier boxers.

While Garrow spars with Johnny, two fighters will observe and shout encouragement, while the remaining fighters work on the speed bag, heavy bag, jump rope or do exercises.

Chris, originally slated to go at 156, is paring down to fight at 147 pounds. He has good combinations, moves well and is hungry.

He is the inspirational leader, constantly reminding the rest of the boxers to work, to sacrifice, to prepare for Saturday's first round.

Dale, the 20-year-old, 167-pounder, also moves well and hits hard. He may not possess the combinations of his brother Chris, but has a crisp jab that should score points.

Scott, the light heavyweight candidate at 178 pounds, is just 22, but is faster than most his size. He has a nice straight right hand and the uncanny ability to move out of trouble, which is a real plus in the light heavyweight division.

"I don't care if you boys lose," said Garrow in a post workout talk during which the coach and his charges discuss their progress and plot strategy, "as long as you lose to a better fighter."

"I think these boys are ready," Garrow added. "I feel good bringing a team like this up to the Gloves."

Twenty-Four Golden Fights

By CHUCK CLARINO

The Vermont Golden Glove Amateur Boxing Tournament opens its three-week stand at Burlington's Memorial Auditorium Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

Fight promoter Ernie Farrar reviews a field of 70 entries and will fashion a card of 24 fights for the first of three Saturday nights.

"What we're seeing is more entries than last year and also a lot more experience and older fighters coming in this year," said Farrar.

Out of 11 weight classes, four reigning champions will return to either defend their crowns, or move into new weight classes.

Teaka Singh, of Glens Falls last year's 106-pound champ, will return with his eye on the 112-pound title this year. Barton's Robert Rockwell is set to defend his 119-pound title. Both are seeded directly into the semifinals.

Perhaps the most colorful fighter of the '84 GG, Bobby "Bang Bang" Wadleigh of Maine, is back and will initiate defense of his 147-pound title in what could be a "LuLu" of a fight with Lyn-J's Shon Marcotte.

Rutland's Marc Machain, the Vermont Super Heavyweight entry in the New England Tournament of Champions, who reached the semifinals in 1984 is on the heavyweight card and squares off against Robert John Estes of North Haverill, N.H.

Rutland-Rec's other heavyweight Angello Iachetta is slated to go against Robert Currier Jr. of the U.S. Air Force and Springfield in a fight of area interest in Southern Vermont.

Rutland Rec fighters who will see action are Paul Reis vs. Greg Reardon of Burlington at 156; Scott Shaddock, Rutland Rec vs. Ross Rackliff, of Barre at 178; Chris Shaddock, Rutland-Rec vs. Carson Arnold, Plattsburgh at 147. Johnny "Bones" Shaddock and Dale Shaddock, the two remaining Rutland-Rec boxers were given draws into the semi-final round.

However, there are a couple of fights that may be worth the price of admission. Roland Wade of Glens Falls is pitted against crowd favorite Ace Lucas of Burlington in the overflowing heavyweight class, and perennial contender Charlie Joyal will fight either Randy Trombley of Plattsburgh, or Mike Greene of Bennington in the 165-pound class.

Paramount Theater Owners

Representatives of the Center on the Alley Inc. signed papers to purchase the former Paramount Theater on Center Street from Joseph Giancola Tuesday afternoon. Present at the closing were (back row from left) Thomas Ryan, Richard Rohe, William Meub, (front row) Giancola, Barbara Giancola, Susan Darrow and James Layden of the Vermont National Bank. The purchase price was $165,000. Darrow, who is the COTA board president, said the organization also was notified that the Internal Revenue Service had granted COTA not-for-profit tax status, which allows certain fund-raising activity not allowed profit-making organizations. COTA members now plan a strong campaign for passage of a $800,000 city bond that would go toward renovations of the historic theater. Plans are for the theater to be renovated and used as a community performing arts center. Darrow said Tuesday, "Of course we're delighted ... and excited."

Rutland City Predominates

In response to those who believe the Center on The Alley (COTA) board consists of people from outlying towns, I am enclosing a list of our members — where they live, work and pay their taxes.

President, Sue Darrow, residence Mendon, pays taxes in Mendon and Rutland City.

Vice president, Betty Ann Martin, residence Rutland-Rutland Town, pays taxes in Rutland and Rutland Town.

Secretary, Margaret Canary, residence Rutland City, pays taxes in Rutland City.

Treasurer, Jane Kosmider, residence Rutland City, pays taxes in Rutland City.

Directors:

Thomas C. Ryan, Rutland City, pays Rutland City taxes; Sandra Cohen, Rutland City, pays Rutland City taxes; Peter Marsh, Rutland City, pays Rutland City taxes; John Cioppredi, Rutland City, pays Rutland City taxes; William and Carolyn Crowley Meub, Rutland City, pay taxes in Rutland City and Middlebury; Thomas Macauley, Rutland City, pays taxes in Rutland City; James Layden, Rutland City, pays Rutland City taxes; Alan George, Pittsford, pays Pittsford and Rutland City taxes; David Wolk, Chittenden, pays Chittenden taxes; Richard Rohe, Shrewsbury, pays Shrewsbury taxes; Walter Capen, Pittsford, pays Pittsford taxes; C. Stark and Ludy Biddle, Shrewsbury, pay Shrewsbury taxes.

It is noteworthy that of the seven members who live out of town, five work in the city and two pay taxes in the city as well as in their own towns.

The Paramount Theater will be used by and for the city. It is a historic building and thus a tourist attraction. We anticipate conducting tours, as Wilson Castle conducts tours.

It will be the home of a teaching program for high school students — self-supportive. It will be available to the city for public meetings and forums.

It will be used by the city schools, the city dance companies, the city musical groups (from jazz to chamber music to choral groups) the city arts organizations, senior citizens and fraternal organizations.

And it will be available for use by conventions that are held in the city.

For those who are able to look to the future, the re-creation of the Playhouse should be of "Paramount" importance.

Wine Course At Rec Center

The Rutland Recreation Department invites all adults, 18 years of age and older, to take part in the popular course, "Wine Appreciation."

This course begins Wednesday, March 6, from 7-9 p.m. and will continue for eight weeks. Course fee is $20. The course will be held at the Rutland Recreation Center.

Bob Hamilton, an established wine expert, will instruct the course. He has instructed the well-attended course several times for the Recreation Department. Students will learn how and where wines are produced, what wines should taste like and why, how to read a wine label, buy what you really want, and how to serve and taste wines.

Registration is on-going at the Recreation office.

City Aldermanic Candidates Respond to Questions

The city's 12 aldermanic candidates were asked to answer the following questions. The dozen are vying for six open board seats in the March 5 election. Their answers appear in alphabetical order, as will the candidates' names on Tuesday's ballot. For lack of space, some candidates remarks had to be cut. All of their replies were written and are in their own words.

Henry C. Brislin

1) "The Paramount Theater bond issue is presently before the voters for approval and any decision in regard to it is, therefore, the voters. As an alderman, I would do everything in my power to carry out the wishes of the voters in a manner that would best benefit the city. The Paramount Theater could be of great benefit to the downtown and therefore, the city. In order to make the Rutland area more attractive, a theater arts/civic center type of facility would be beneficial. The Paramount is a historic site, and its best use would be to continue to be a theater. City government must take an active role in promoting the city, and the revitalization of the downtown is a key part of this."

2) "Rutland City should actively do whatever is necessary to protect its strength and economic base. The city must take a very active role to make sure that the environmental board has before it all the ramifications of a proposed mall, and takes into account the city of Rutland's place in the region."

3) "Parking deck, recreation center, Paramount theater, water purification plant, new police station.

4) "The biggest issue facing Rutland City is to broaden its tax base to relieve the burden presently on the residential taxpayer."

John P. Cassarino

1) "I do not support the Paramount Theater bond issue because I believe this is not a priority item. There are many more important items that should take precedence such as street repairs, replacement of water mains, separation of sewer lines, clean drinking water, better recreational facilities and a safer and more secure police station. These are matters that are of more immediate concern to the community."

2) "No, I believe this would further hinder cooperation between the town and the city. Even through the city may have been short-sighted in not allowing part of the Commons to be built in the city, we still stand to benefit from employment, providing other services to the people that come to Rutland to shop at the Commons, plus we will also collect approximately $40,000 a year for the next 10 years on the ad valorem tax."

3) Water, recreation, parking,

Paramount, new police station.

4) "The property tax rate and the burden of the property taxpayers of our city. We must stabilize spending for governmental purposes to make sure that all of our citizens get their dollar's worth of services. For too long home owners priorities have been placed on the back burner."

Question 1 — Do you support the Paramount Theater bond issue? Why or why not?

Question 2 — Do you think Rutland City should oppose construction of The Commons in Rutland Town through the Act 250 permit process?

Question 3 — Rate these projects in order of importance: a) Paramount Theater renovation; b) second downtown city parking deck; c) water purification plant; d) new police station;

Question 4 — What is the biggest issue facing Rutland today?

Marilyn Colman

1) "I do not support the Paramount Theater bond issue. This particular project should be developed by a regional group with private funding. It could be established as a non-profit organization like the Flynn Theater for the Performing Arts in Burlington."

2) "I have to give the entire mall issue more thought before I come out with a definite point of view."

3) Water, recreation, parking, Paramount, new police station.

4) "Meaningful growth seems to be the biggest issue facing Rutland today. In the growth we must see life become more comfortable with new tax revenues from new industries. Our young people need a YMCA or a recreation complex. If I were an alderman, I would meet with interested citizens to find out their needs. I personally feel the future will be brighter if we permit growth to provide the necessities to make Rutland strong for our children — our future."

Patricia Donnelly

1) "No! In no way is it realistic for the city of Rutland to be financially involved with the Paramount Theater."

2) "The Act 250 process, by nature or design, will deal with the major environmental threats to Rutland. If these problems are answered satisfactorily, I do not feel we should push for obscure interpretations of Act 250 in order to stop development. I also do not feel the taxpayers should incur the legal cost of that kind of battle."

3) Parking deck, water plant, recreation center, police station, theater.

4) "The threat of losing the neighborhood school concept. It is an important part of what makes Rutland such a nice place to live. I feel the impact to Rutland will have an effect on property values in the city. As a mother, a taxpayer and liaison between the Board of Aldermen and the school board I feel every member of our community should stand behind the effort to save our neighborhood schools."

Marion Fish

1) "No. I believe there is enough private wealth in this area to support such a project. It should be regional, not just Rutland City. Perhaps a matching fund — private/public (money) from all area towns. There are too many other priority needs for our tax dollars, such as a new school on the southwest section. We need to preserve our neighborhood school system if we hope to attract new industry to the city."

2) "I believe we should ask for party status in the Act 250 process.

I believe the impact on city services, such as fire protection, water, sewage and traffic patterns are our main areas of interest in this proposed project."

3) "Water purification plant. The others do not fit any priorities on my list."

4) "A solid tax system. Current assessment is in trouble and we need some new and innovative marketing for Rutland City if we are going to keep our present businesses as well as attract new sources."

Barry Keeffe

1) "I will personally vote on election day in favor of giving the Board of Aldermen the authority to bond for this unique cultural landmark. As alderman, I would make sure that any further funding of operations above the $800,000 approved was clearly in place or realistically projected, and I would also solicit support from regional towns to see what commitment they are willing to make. As a practical matter, the city voters will decide the issue on election day."

2) "The city should be made party to the Act 250 hearing process. It is important that the city be present and a party to any Act 250 hearing that impacts the quality of life in Rutland City. In this case, the homeowners in the northern section, the sewer lines, traffic patterns and our downtown merchants are the subject of my concern."

3) Water purification plant, Paramount renovations, recreation center, parking deck, police station.

4) "Generating revenue sources other than from the homeowners that will fund our growing needs for services. A comprehensive plan must be developed that will aid in attracting good clean environmentally sound industry to Rutland. This is the key to a wider tax base because with controlled growth comes jobs."

the downtown is a key part of this."

3) "Parking deck, recreation center, police station, second parking deck, paramount.

4) "The biggest issue facing Rutland City is to broaden its tax base to relieve the burden presently on the residential taxpayer."

Carolyn C. Meub

1) "Yes, I support the Paramount bond issue. I believe it is an investment in the future of Rutland. For each dollar spent on the project three dollars come into the city. I am convinced that the project is not for a special interest group, but for all the community. As a property taxpayer, I am willing to invest in the future for my children and grandchildren. To do otherwise would be penny-wise and pound foolish."

2) "Rutland City should oppose the Commons in Rutland Town through the Act 250 process. I believe the Commons will have a negative impact on the economic health of Rutland. The Commons should be opposed just as the city of Burlington opposed the Pyramid Mall."

3) "Meub did not prioritize the list, but gave issues to be addressed in each. The answers were too long to print.)

4) "Rutland needs a clear vision and plan for its future. Growth needs to be planned, well thought-out and responsible. We, as a community, need to define what kind of community we want to be in 15 years. Money must be located and budgeted for streets, sidewalks, water lines and other municipal services. These must be considered regular maintenance, not crisis capitol improvements. Rutland must avoid reactive decision making as much as possible."

employment, providing other services to the people that come to Rutland to shop at the Commons, plus we will also collect approximately $40,000 a year for the next 10 years on the ad valorem tax."

3) Water purification plant, recreation center, police station, second parking deck, paramount.

4) "The property tax rate and the burden of the property taxpayers of our city. We must stabilize spending for governmental purposes to make sure that all of our citizens get their dollar's worth of services. For too long home owners priorities have been placed on the back burner."

Roger Pike

1) "I support the concept of a community arts center using the Paramount theater building. Rutland has a need for such a facility. Philosophically, I am not convinced that the taxpayers' money should be used to fund such a center."

2) "Rutland should participate in the Act 250 process hearings on the Commons. If the sponsors of the project are unable to satisfy the Act 250 criteria than Rutland should take a position in opposition to the Commons project."

3) Water purification plant, more downtown parking, new police station, new recreation center, Paramount.

4) "Without question the biggest issue facing Rutland today is promotion of the business area and attracting new industry to our area."

A comprehensive plan must be developed that will aid in attracting good clean environmentally sound industry to Rutland. This is the key to a wider tax base because with controlled growth comes jobs."

Henry J. Russo

1) "Although I favor the concept of the Paramount Theater project, I do not favor the bond issue on this matter. I feel that this project should be funded entirely by the private sector."

2) "Since I feel that the Commons would be harmful to the Rutland downtown business district, I would therefore favor opposition of its construction through the Act 250 permit process."

3) Water purification plant, more downtown parking, new police station, new recreation center, Paramount.

4) "Without question the biggest issue facing Rutland today is promotion of the business area and attracting new industry to our area."

Randy Shannon

1) "No, I do not think the city can afford this project. We are placing quite a burden on the taxpayers and our priorities must include more pragmatic issues. As it is, the Paramount theater is one more of a string of projects to boost downtown Rutland. First, I am not sure it will do the trick and secondly, I think it is time that downtown compete as businesses in other areas must, by reducing prices and offering incentives to shoppers."

2) "In regard to the Commons built in the town, I feel that the city must take an active part in the Act 250 process especially in regard to traffic, water and sewer and water run-off problems."

3) Water purification plant, second parking deck and Paramount theater.

4) "Economic development I believe to be the biggest issue facing the city. RIDC, the chamber of commerce and the Rutland Regional Planning Commission have all published brochures on Rutland and with the marketing study done at the Howe-Richardson Scale Co. property I look forward to great results this coming year."

Robert Stafford

1) "Until I see some firm plans, specifications and cost estimates on this project, I can not support it. In order for the city to bond for this project the city must hold title to the property. I would hate to see this project only partially complete and the city faced with another large expense."

2) "In regard to the Commons built in the town, I feel that the city must take an active part in the Act 250 process especially in regard to traffic, water and sewer and water run-off problems."

3) Water purification plant, second parking deck and Paramount theater.

4) "Economic development I believe to be the biggest issue facing the city. RIDC, the chamber of commerce and the Rutland Regional Planning Commission have all published brochures on Rutland and with the marketing study done at the Howe-Richardson Scale Co. property I look forward to great results this coming year."

Howard Short sleeve Jr.

1) "I personally intend to vote for the Paramount project. Priorities mentioned by other candidates have already been addressed and through prudent and patient planning bonding rates are at a level so that we can commence work on sidewalks, streets and sanitary-storm sewers and finally water purification."

2) "The city should be a party to any proposed development in the Town of Rutland which may have a negative impact on the central business district of the city. That position comes directly from the Rutland Town plan. The developers of the proposed Commons are attempting to amend the town plan to remove that consideration. Selectmen and planning commissioners in years past must have had a concern for the viability of the city's central business district or they would not have included such a consideration in their own plan. Should it be concluded by independent means that indeed there will be a negative impact than the city should indeed fight the Commons."

3) Water purification, second parking deck, police station, recreation center.

4) "Now that we have developed an infrastructure to accommodate industrial development at the airport, various parks within the city and the Town of Rutland, we must develop an effective marketing effort. With the new agreement with the Town of Rutland, the city stands to gain 20 percent of all the new tax revenue in the town of no recent date."

Coupon Advice To Be Repeated 3/23

Melissa Lawler will repeat her popular workshop "Cash in With Coupons" from 1 to 3 p.m. on Wednesday, March 27, at the Rutland Senior Center on Deer Street.

Last fall Lawler was featured in the Rutland Herald when she bought nine bags of groceries, worth $191.12, for a cash payment of only $5.90. Since then she has shared her coupon system and secrets with dozens of people at workshops sponsored by the University of Vermont Extension Service, and with countless others as a featured guest on several local radio programs.

Participants in Wednesday's workshop will have a chance to start their own coupon system, with Lawler's help, and swap coupons with others at the meeting.

Peg Andrews, Extension home economist, will compare savings with costs of various coupon strategies, to help participants figure out how to fit coupon use into their own lifestyle and shopping habits.

The workshop is open to the public, but pre-registration is required by March 26. People who wish to register should call Dorothy Paul at the senior center at 773-1853. There will be a $3 fee for workshop materials.

The coupon workshop is sponsored by the Rutland Recreation Department and the UVM Extension Service.

Seniors' Medical Insurance Topic 3/11

Medical insurance is something everyone needs, and the spiraling cost of insurance and medical care are of concern to everyone, but older persons must supply what is commonly called Medi-Gap Insurance. This is to pay what Medicare does not.

The Rutland Recreation Department will sponsor a public forum on Medi-Gap Insurance (medical supplement insurance) and its cost.

Roger Lever of the state Banking and Insurance Department will be the featured speaker. Lever will also be available for questions.

The open meeting will be held Wednesday, March 13, at 1:30 p.m. at the Rutland Senior Center on Deer Street.

New Softball Fields Are A 'Go Project'

By BOB FREDETTE

Springtime is not very far off, nor is good news for local softball enthusiasts.

Construction will begin on the City's new two-diamond softball complex within three-to-four months, and it is hoped that facility will be ready for play when the recreation seasons open in 1986.

The new park, funded by BOR (Bureau of Outdoor Recreation) and the Rutland Adult Softball Association, will increase Rutland's number of softball fields from five to seven.

The complex will be located next to Northeast Graded School off Temple Street, where one of the five existing fields is located.

It will help alleviate the crush for fields in the city, where adult summer leagues monopolize softball facilities every weeknight from mid-May until mid-August. Approximately 80 teams competed in men's and women's play last year.

The fields will be regulation-sized (no less than 275 feet from home plate to the fences), enclosed by eight-foot-high fences, and will probably have special, semi-dome backstops.

Blacktopping of a parking area, the installment of portable bleachers, and protective fences for the bench areas will be other features in the package, said Recreation & Parks Department Superintendent John Ciuffredi late last week.

The installation of basketball courts at the complex is a possibility.

"Our engineer is making the specifications. We'll hope to have (the project) out for bidding in May so construction will start this spring," said Ciuffredi. "It's a go project."

Construction on the (approximately) $200,000 complex will commence in June should everything go according to schedule.

Before construction gets underway:

- Specifications for the project will be completed, then reviewed. The review is scheduled for mid-April.

- Bidding on the project would then be opened in May.

- Bids would be reviewed and the project awarded to a construction firm in early June.

Cioffredi hopes construction begins within two weeks of the award, and says that a maximum 120 days will be allowed for completion of the project.

The bulk of the construction will entail filling in a marshy area, and grading and seeding the complex. A good autumn and spring growing season would ready the fields for use next year.

The infields will be grass with dirt basepaths cut out of the turf, like the infields at Meadow Street, Giorgetti, and the field already in use at Northeast. The basepaths will be fashioned to adjust to men's (65-feet from base to base) and women's (60 feet) playing specifications.

The present field at Northeast is located to the north side of the school building. The new complex will be located roughly southwest of the building.

The new fields will face one another, as at Meadow Street, but will be separated by their respective fences. The distance from home plate to dead centerfield, says Ciuffredi, will be 275 feet, although the fence will be farther from the plate at other points.

Drinking fountains will be installed at both fields.

"The (water) lines that are going in are sufficient to put an irrigation system in," said Ciuffredi. "I hope some day all our fields will have irrigation."

Rutland High School will begin its baseball season on April 10 at Hudson Falls, N.Y., and open its Southern Vermont League schedule against Bellows Falls on April 13.

"That gives us about three and a half weeks," said coach Joe Teta, who will hold his first practice session Monday. "Then we have BF in the first league game on the 13th, so we've got to be ready."

The Raiders should be able to improve upon last year's 6-9 regular season mark. The club returns starters: third baseman Chris Zeigler, pitcher Geoff Swett, outfield/pitcher Kevin Bellomo, outfielder Marc Williams, catcher Dan Norris, infielder/pitcher Jeff Gaiko, and first baseman Tony Teta.

mayor to compile a list of necessary repairs, their cost to the city and estimated date of completion for each and present it to the board at their next meeting, now scheduled for April 15.

The board included in that motion threatened penalties for the mayor and department heads who failed to comply with their order, but it did not specify what these penalties might be.

Angered over what she said was the mayor's failure to deal with the problem, Smith stood up and said the board should "impeach" Daley.

Her remark was followed by an illegal "second," and a smile from outside the rail. The seconder of that motion was former alderman and unsuccessful mayoral candidate Linda Welch.

Welch later told the board she attended the meeting to bring to their attention complaints from citizens regarding traffic problems at the corner of Forest and River Streets. "Citizens still call me," she said. "They think I'm still on the Board of Aldermen."

Later in the evening, Smith chided Daley for dumping in the board's lap a request by City Assessor Charles Franzoni. Franzoni has approached the board several times in recent months asking to discuss office reorganization in preparation for future city-wide appraisals.

The board had asked Daley to meet with Franzoni and report back to them. But, Smith said, "As much as the mayor refuses to take action on this, we will send it to committee." The board agreed to take up Franzoni's request at a future meeting.

Softball Meeting

There will be a Committee Meeting for the Rutland Adult Softball Association Thursday at 6:30 p.m. at the Lawrence Recreation Center. The meeting is open to all coaches and players.

Board Calls for Action on Accessibility

By MEGAN PRICE

Rutland aldermen this week ordered Mayor John J. Daley to take immediate action to make public buildings more accessible to the handicapped.

A complaint from some handicapped people that Rutland City government has not complied with federal and aldermanic mandates to improve public building access prompted the order.

Alderman John Cassarino, a member of the city's special committee addressing handicapped access in public buildings, told the board Monday that Community Development Director and Public Works Commissioner Thomas Macaulay said he was not receiving cooperation from other department heads in his attempts to eliminate barriers to handicapped persons.

Cassarino said Macaulay wanted the board to help him get the cooperation he needed.

Macaulay also addressed the board. He said the city's senior citizens center, library, recreation department and City Hall itself were problem areas.

Last October, the aldermen adopted plans to upgrade handicapped access in the city. But to date, little has been done to make the changes, Macaulay said.

Handicapped access is prevented by an absence of ramps, or inaccessibility to bathrooms and other essential services, Cassarino said.

David Sagi, a member of the ad hoc committee studying handicapped access, said, "So far it doesn't seem like anyone is taking us seriously."

Sagi said a person confined to a wheelchair would be unable to use the bathroom in City Hall even though the door to the rest room states it is equipped for the handicapped. An inside barrier would make it impossible for a person in a wheelchair to move around in there, he said.

Alderman Hayden Bride was angered over Macaulay's complaint. "I resent the fact we are being asked to do someone else's work for them," he said, adding the mayor was directed to order the changes months ago.

Bride said Daley should immediately order department heads to make changes to comply with the order for their buildings. If the work is not done, he said, they should be fired.

Alderman Shirley Smith also chastised the mayor for what she alleged were his failures to carry out aldermanic directives. She said the city was "once again ignoring a minority," by failing to comply with the handicapped access ruling.

On the issue of handicapped access, the aldermen ordered the

Tax Aid Volunteers Praised

In celebration of National Volunteer Week (April 22-28) I would like to thank publicly the volunteers who recently completed another successful season of income tax counseling for the elderly.

These volunteers are Sherry Armitage, Stella Boudreau, Dorothy Bradley, James Cannon, Kenneth LaPlant, Albert "Monk" Martin, Lawrence Merritt, Earle Morse, Phyllis Robinson, William Savage, Amie Taylor and Dr. Eleanor Young.

From Jan. 5 to 12 they attended a week-long training session at Castleton State College under the sponsorship of the Internal Revenue Service. After successful completion of this course the volunteers helped senior citizens in filing federal returns, state returns, local property tax rebate claims and sale tax refund claims.

By the end of the tax season our volunteers had contributed 516 hours of their time in helping 407 taxpayers, 50 of whom were elderly citizens who were residents of nursing homes or house-bound and unable to come to our counseling sites for assistance.

I also wish to thank John Cioffredi, director of the Rutland Recreation Center, for making it possible for our volunteers to use the facilities of the Rutland Senior Center for our counseling sessions.

We also appreciate and wish to thank the staff of the Rutland Senior Center — Dorothy Paul, Jeff Pratt, Ed Griffiths and Darlene Fredette for their cooperation in scheduling our appointments and helping us to work comfortably in the pleasant surroundings of the Rutland Senior Center.

Tax counseling for the elderly is a very worthwhile community service, and we in Rutland are very fortunate to have competent and concerned volunteers offer their talents to their neighbors. Thank you, again!

I look forward to working with all of you next season.

Karate Kid

Mary Hayward, 9, of Rutland concentrates and then throws a kick during the Rutland Recreation Department's karate program on Friday. More than 50 children have signed up for the popular program, which builds strength as well as confidence. (See story, Page 15)

Karate Kids Kicking Egos into Shape

By YVONNE DALEY

The children were dressed in sweatsuits, some camouflaged, and had all seen the movie "Karate Kid." Perhaps, they had envisioned themselves in the movie's lead role.

More children than ever before — some as young as three years old — are studying karate at the Rutland Recreation Center this month.

They're learning more than defense moves, however. They're also learning subtle, and maybe more valuable, lessons — about self-confidence, discipline, and respect for others. It's why Tad Bottoms, 32, is so popular with the children. It's why he's been teaching karate for 10 years.

"I'm not teaching them to kick and punch," says Bottoms. "I'm teaching them to think. I'm teaching them to be good people."

"No kicking, punching or fighting outside of class," he says. "If you do, you're out." Then he smiles: "I don't want any boosting the youngsters' egos along with their belts," he adds.

More than 55 children from three to 16 years of age have signed up for this month's classes, a remarkable increase says Tad Bottoms, director. Forty children

As the students work out, he counts from one to ten or gives commands in Japanese and the children soon repeat the strange-sounding words.

"Why do we stretch?" he asks. A young boy responds, "To get our muscles warmed up."

"Concentrate on what you do. Feel the muscles that are being stretched," says Bottoms. "Make sure your toes are pointing up. I don't want you to hurt these muscles," he says, touching the long muscles of the leg.

Some of the children in this class have earned white belts and wear them proudly. A few older kids teach a technique to some younger ones who are ready for a new challenge.

About six girls are in the three newest classes. "The girls are more," Bottoms says. "I think there will be more."

After stretching exercises, the students are taught a new technique, sometimes a specific hand movement or kick, or a way to

Demonstrating Support

Members of the Rutland Peace Network held demonstrations Tuesday in support of Sen. Robert T. Stafford, R-Vt. They were among the hundreds of Vermonters who participated in demonstrations against the Reagan administration's policy of supporting and providing funds to rebels in Nicaragua, a policy which Rep. James Jeffords, R-Vt., Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., and Stafford oppose. The picketing in Rutland took place in Main Street Park.

The Center Street Alley Will Be Repaired Soon

By MONICA ALLEN

Rutland City awarded Giancola Construction Co. a $15,000 contract to repair and realign brickwork on the base of Center Street Alley.

John W. Cioffredi, director of the Rutland Recreation and Parks Department, said Thursday Giancola was the only company to bid on the project, which is planned to begin in a few weeks. Cioffredi is in charge of the alley.

Public Works Director Thomas G. Macaulay said the brickwork has been damaged in the last four years by cars and trucks driving and parking in the alley.

Macaulay said Acting Police Chief Douglas R. Williams had been asked this week to begin enforcing parking regulations that apply to the alley, which was designed for pedestrians. The damaged bricks, holes in walkways and loose bricks are a hazard to pedestrians, Macaulay said.

Cioffredi said he and Joseph Giancola, the president of the construction company and former owner of the former Paramount Theater on Center Street, will work together pinpointing the areas in need of repair.

Giancola said the city's awarding him the bid for repairs would have no effect on his lawsuit against the city for damage to the alley near the Paramount Theater.

Giancola filed suit against the city for damages he contends were done to his building in 1981 during construction of the alley. Giancola claims the west wall of the building was damaged by the work.

Giancola's bid was for $2.30 per square foot of repair, Cioffredi said. The city has budgeted a maximum of $15,000 for the repair work.

Cioffredi said he did not know why there was only one bidder. The project was advertised in the newspaper.

He speculated that the project might have been too small to attract attention and the bonding requirement might have scared some bidders away.

Bidders were required to bond the project for 100 percent of the cost of the work.

Be A Heart Healthy Vermonter: 'Walking for Fitness' Wednesday

The Rutland Recreation Department and Rutland Area Visiting Nursing Association sponsors the first annual "Walking For Fitness Day" on Wednesday, May 22. The walk will begin in Center Street Alley, exit onto Washington Street, continue up to Route 7 north along the walkway, through Main Street Park, left down West Street, left onto Merchants Row, left onto Center Street, and right into the Center Street Alley entrance. A proclamation has been signed by Mayor John J. Daley proclaiming Wednesday, May 22, as the first Annual "Walking For Fitness Day."

The walking program is part of the overall "Be a Heart Healthy Vermonter" campaign and coincides with the state of Vermont Employees Fitness Week beginning May 20.

Free T-shirts and bumper stickers will be given out. Have your blood pressure taken before and after walk. Certificates of award will be given to those groups (banks and retail stores) who have the most people participating in the walk.

Walking is often found to be easier to stick with than other exercise activities. It is fun, easy and inexpensive. A one-mile jaunt will burn up about 130 calories. Walking is basically a safe injury-free form of exercise. Walking is an individual physical activity that is more convenient than most sports that require other participants or special equipment and facilities. Walking does not have to be time consuming. For further information about "Walking For Fitness Day", call the recreation office at 773-1822.

Junior, Senior League Registration

night of registration, $7 any other time. Students who do not make the Senior League will automatically go to the Junior League. Tryouts for both leagues are June 10, 3:30 p.m., at Giorgetti Park, rain or shine. Tryouts are a must.

Students already playing Midget League are not eligible to play in the Senior League program, but may play in the morning Junior League.

Terry Gilmore Wins Annual Frank Crowley Road Race

By PETER FENN

Approximately 150 runners from all walks of life were entered in the 1985 running of the Frank Crowley Memorial Road Race Sunday afternoon. In very hot conditions that had some affect on the times, Terry Gilmore was the overall winner, covering the 6.2 mile course in a time of 33:32.

The race started in Proctor and followed Route 3, with some slight deviations, to Route 4 where it proceeded into Rutland, finishing up on Court Street in front of the Recreation Department. Due to the heat, the runners found water stops at two spots along the way. Gilmore, second last year, was not to be stopped this time around. With no desire to run Route 3 alone, he waited until the 3-mile mark before making his move, and pulled away steadily from there to the finish. Gilmore, running 10 miles a day, is training seriously and hopes to have a successful summer season with his next race on July 7 in Lake George.

Gilmore was followed across the line by Warren Doody and Doug Austin with times of 34:20 and 35:09, respectively. As Gilmore won the overall division, Doody won the open men's category. Austin was the top finisher in the sub-master's division.

Caryn Etherington hit the tape first overall for the women in a time of 42:08. She was followed by the open division winner Judy Ketchan (43:48), and Michele Eitapence (44:53). Kathy Auci (45:18) won the sub-master section for the women.

In the master division, Russ Pickering (38:10) and Rosemary Rustin (49:50) brought home the hardware. Leonard Gero (44:43) won the Super Masters in a time of 44:43. The top finishers in the 17 and under category were John Daly (37:12), still recovering from his runs in the state high school track meet Saturday, and Maria Carmolli (60:15), also a Rutland trackster.

The race is named in honor of Frank Crowley, a Rutland native whose running accomplishments earned him a well-respected name throughout the world. Crowley won the first running of the Proctor-to-Rutland race in 1928 while in Rutland High School, and went on to set the world record for high school boys at Allentown Prep in Pennsylvania.

While at Manhattan College, Crowley became a member of the U.S. Olympic Team and participated in the 1932 Olympic Mile. He died at the age of 70 of brain cancer.

The race started in 1928 yet was discontinued in the 1930's. Local runners Mike Carty and Jack Arthur brought the race back on its feet in the late 70's, and it has been run ever since.

The race was broadcast by WWHB and its sponsors would like to see it grow. Joe Crowley, brother of Frank, feels the race brings people together, and in the relaxed atmosphere all types of runners from the most serious to the easily pleased, can find satisfaction. From the smiles at the finish it appeared that he was right.

City May Be Forced to Close Upper Floors at Rec Center

By MONICA ALLEN

Federal handicapped regulations may force the city to seal off the second and third floors of the Edwin W. Lawrence Recreation Center this fall.

Without an elevator to take handicapped people to the second and third floors, it would be against regulations to offer public programs up there, according to John W. Cioffredi, director of the Department of Recreation and Parks.

An elevator for the old Center Street building would have cost approximately $150,000, Cioffredi said. Mayor John J. Daley cut the item from the 1985-86 recreation budget.

Cioffredi said last week that he was not surprised when the item was cut, although he included the item to meet federal regulations. Cioffredi said it would be wiser to use the $150,000 for a new recreation building, instead of an elevator.

There are four small rooms on the second floor and three rooms on the third floor. They are currently used for arts and crafts programs and a boxing club workout room.

Cioffredi said he would have to find other places for these groups to meet.

Federal regulations require cities and towns that receive any federal money to make all buildings and programs accessible to the handicapped by the fall of 1986.

A committee that investigated the city's compliance with handicapped regulations suggested Cioffredi begin complying with the regulations by the fall of 1985 and prove to the federal government that it could work for a full year.

To comply with federal laws, the city will install ramps at the Rutland Free Library and Rotary Park and make bathrooms accessible to the handicapped at the recreation buildings and the library this fiscal year. These items, estimated at $14,000, were included in the budget, recently approved by the Board of Aldermen.

Cioffredi said other accommodations probably would be made next year to meet standards. He said changes might be made to the volleyball program to ban players from using the locker room in the recreation building cellar.

Cioffredi contends if a place is off limits to the handicapped, it must by law be off limits to the non-handicapped.

Cioffredi said he did not plan to cut any programs as a result of the space limitations. "I'll take this as a challenge," Cioffredi said. "I could use it as an excuse."

There are currently no adult recreation programs designed to accommodate handicapped people, but Cioffredi said he would be glad to try to design programs for the future.

Handicapped children are involved in the recreation department's day camps.

Pictured above at left is an enlargement of the photograph at right said to have been taken in Rutland County in 1979. Norman and Jeff Pratt of Rutland Wednesday night discussed the taking of the picture of "Bigfoot." The ape-like creature at left is a smaller spot in the top center of the photo at right. The photograph was taken in a forest bridge, but someone later noticed something else in the background.

Eyewitness Accounts

Is There A Vermont 'Bigfoot'?

By TOM MITCHELL

CASTLETON — John Rose of Castleton was driving a pickup truck in Stockbridge in the mid-1960s when he encountered a large creature in the road.

The creature was "greyish in color," Rose said, and "seven or eight feet" tall.

He saw the creature move quickly in "one stride" squarely across the road, he said its arms swinging.

"It wasn't a bear," said Rose, who added there were six or seven men along with him in the hunting party at the time.

Was this "Vermont's" "Bigfoot" or "Sasquatch"? Was it a hoax or a hallucination? Or was it a long-lost, ancient relative of the Homo sapiens? Believe it or not?

More than 150 people turned out Wednesday night here to hear eyewitness accounts of sightings of "Bigfoot" in eastern New York and Vermont. They also saw a slide of a photograph of a large, hairy creature said to have been taken in Rutland County.

The presentation at Castleton State College was held to make people aware of the possible existence of a man-like ape in the northeast.

"If there's a species like this living in Vermont, we want to protect it," said Dr. Warren Cook, a Castleton anthropology professor and longtime "Bigfoot" hunter.

There is value in the study of the Sasquatch because the creatures are hominids, the closest living relatives to man, Cook said.

"It is important that the witnesses are not harassed and made fun of. It is a phenomena. It has not been proven. But it has been frequent enough. People who have experiences ought not be ridiculed," Cook said.

"Scientists are afraid of being laughed at. They can't or won't put it on endangered species list," Cook said.

Cook concludes that the "Sasquatch" is most likely cold-weather variety of Australopithecus living in swampy areas. That is a genus of extinct primates.

The encounters in Vermont and New York have involved the actual visual sightings, hearing of "vocalizations" by the creature, or the discovery of footprints.

"Vocalizations" is the term used to describe the screeching or hyena-like sounds supposedly made by the creature.

After a slide presentation Wednesday, some eyewitnesses took seats on the stage and gave accounts of their contact with the creatures.

John Rowell of Groton said he was logging in a swampy area in Salisbury in the early 1930s when he found some strange footprints.

One night he came back to the site and found a 55-gallon can of diesel fuel had been removed to the woods. "We found the can had been taken off the tractor," Rowell said. He checked and found footprints frozen in the mud.

Rowell described the dimension of the footprint: "Eight inches at the toe, 20 inches long, and 4-inch heel."

Bryan Gosselin of Whitehall, N.Y., gave a description of his encounter in August

find them.

Cook next spoke up for one woman, and she then stood and acknowledged that she had seen something that resembled a "Bigfoot" in Hubbardton.

Some witnesses from Rutland County and eastern New York didn't show up. Other people who have allegedly seen the creature will not come forward, Cook said.

Based on the questions people in the audience asked, they did not appear to be too skeptical of the creature's existence.

While some people said they believed the creature existed somewhere in the world, they doubted whether it existed in Vermont or the Whitehall.

Ted Pratt of Rutland commented on a slide of a photograph taken in a remote setting in northeastern Rutland County. The slide was enlarged during the presentation to show a large fury thing, apparently a representation of a body.

The Pratts, who have a negative of the photograph, would not reveal in which town the photograph was taken or by whom it was taken.

Cook said he has had the photograph checked by a photographic Los Angeles company, which said the negative had not been tampered with.

Paul Bartholomew, who is coordinating a group study of "Bigfoot" in eastern New York, said that the last sighting in the area was near Whitehall.

Bartholomew said two members of a family saw at least one of the "Bigfoot" creatures within 25 feet of their house.

There was also a footprint taken in the snow last year in the Whitehall area. However those prints had been disrupted, Bartholomew said.

The Buteaus went back to find the footprints, but they could not

1976. He said he saw a creature "seven or eight feet tall, with dark-brown hair."

Gosselin, who was with another policeman at the time, shined a spotlight on the creature. He said it had red eyes the size of half dollars.

The next day, he said, he and other policemen found a trail and a stench.

It is consistent that most of sightings of the creatures have been made in swampy or wet areas, Cook said.

Clifford Sparks of Whitehall said he had a five-second encounter with the Sasquatch in May 1975 at the Skene Valley Club in Whitehall. "There was a huge creature on the green. It crashed through the woods, moved very fast."

"It was much taller than I am. It was much bigger than I am," he said.

Sparks then said he was in the clubhouse last May when he next heard the creature. "It was a hyena-like laugh, a mocking kind of laugh. It brought the hair on the back of my neck."

For the most part, the eyewitness accounts presented Wednesday were made more than 10 years ago.

In addition to those old accounts, there were second-hand accounts of sightings of footprints in the Hubbardton area made as recently as last spring.

B.F. Buteau of Hubbardton stood up in the audience and told of his wife and son seeing a set of large footprints and hearing the screeching of a possible "Bigfoot" in northwestern Hubbardton in March 1984. There was also a strong smell from the creature, Buteau said.

The Buteaus went back to find the footprints, but they could not
